FALL AND SINCLAIR TRIALS TO BE RUSHED

Washington, October 25.—Speakers at government counsel are about to ask for prompt trial of former Secretary of the Interior Fall, E. L. Doheny and Harry F. Sinclair on charges of conspiracy in connection with the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills oil leases.

Trial has been delayed for several months while the validity of the indictments was being tested. Recently the District of Columbia court has upheld the indictments and ordered the three defendants to stand trial. Today the special grand jury, headed by Atlee Pomeroy and Owen Roberts, informed the District of Columbia criminal court that on Friday they

W. D. Hoffman, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, and William H. Hensley, chief of construction, Edmund W. Martin, president of the Courtland Street Improvement association, and P. H. Snook, member of the Courtland street committee, also made short speeches.

Pittsburgh, Pa., October 25.—(AP)—A small roll of money, hidden in a milk bottle at the home of Edward Goodfellow, a suspect in the Brotherhood Savings and Trust company $320,000 bond swindle, was found to contain $175,000 in bills of large denomination when detectives this afternoon began counting the contents of several packages of money recovered near the Goodfellow home a short time previously. Three other packages remained to be counted. One package found Saturday contained about $50,000.

Victory Conceded To Prosecutor In Choir Probe

Somerville, N. J., October 25.—(Ap.)—A factory was concealed tonight to Sunday morning by the action of the prosecutor of the Hall-Mills murder case, a statement issued by W. Percival Snyder, foreman of the grand jury which tomorrow was to defy the prosecutor by the exhibition of evidence against alleged accessories.

The statement, in effect, announced that "if Mr. Simpson is not ready tomorrow, the grand jury will meet him tomorrow morning."

Mr. Snyder last night declared the grand jury an "independent body, capable of acting on its own initiative" and saw no reason why the "wings could not be concluded tomorrow."

CHICAGO PASTORS TO FIGHT MOVIES MOCKING RELIGION

Chicago, October 25.—Protestant ministers of Chicago have decided to launch a national campaign against the exhibition of moving pictures which make a mock of Protestant religion, clergymen and missionaries. A resolution on this subject was adopted by the Union Ministers' association and asks that similar organizations of other cities take up the same work. The resolution does not name any of the offending pictures but declares the "anti-Christ movement is general in motion pictures and vaudeville."

Gales of Laughter Greet Opening of 'The Fall Guy'

Riding astride a terrific gale of fun and not letting up for two solid hours, the greatest laugh producer this side of laughter swept a big audience into convulsions at the Forsyth theater last night as the curtain was drawn on "The Fall Guy."

It was a three-act comedy of fun that struck out for the approval of lovers of comedy and no show seen in Atlanta in many years carried such a punch, was more cleverly sustained or had such bright and snappy lines.

he otherwise when every last soul of us giggled like silly flappers, holding first one side and then another. That is music to him.

A director, though, like a great football lineman, never gets due credit. Most of us realize, however, that somewhere there is some one back of these fine productions who is doing great work.

Miss Dingley Fine. There was one person who didn't laugh—just one. Harry McAlpin, who is his name. He is the stoical director. It isn't new to him on Monday nights, because he is occupied with the acting, the finesse, the art of players and a thousand and one things that only a director can think of. But he was pleased. He couldn't.

She changes frocks about half a dozen times Monday night—all of them simple and plain, but pretty and more stunning with each change. A vivacious and most refreshing type of woman is Miss Dingley, and a genuine pleasure to watch her work.

Miss Shaler is the same saucy, dainty individual she always appears. As the Quinlan sisters, these two young women carry much of the work of laugh making in "The Fall Guy."

Miss Jeanne Desnoes, leading woman, is having a rest this week but will return in "Silence" next week.

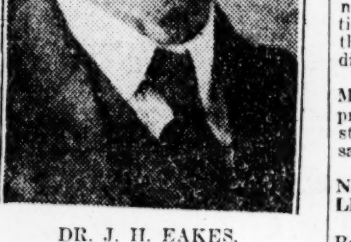

Many good shows have been seen this season at the Forsyth but "The Fall Guy" is far and above the best of its kind. It is everything a laugh producer should be and then some.

Former Rome Hotel Clerk Surrenders To Gulfport Police

Gulfport, Miss., October 25.—(Special.)—C. M. Brittain, formerly a clerk of the Hotel General Forrest at Rome, Ga., who is charged with larceny of hotel funds, will return to Georgia without requisition, Gulfport police said today.

Brittain came into police headquarters yesterday afternoon and surrendered. He claims that he became intoxicated in Rome, and first came to a clear realization of his predicament in New Orleans and had started back home when he decided to give up. He had $2 in his pockets when he came to Gulfport.

LEFT ROME. T. N. DAVIS. AGO. Rome, Ga., October 25.—(Special.)—C. M. Brittain, of Dalton, former clerk at the Hotel General Forrest, left Rome about 10 days ago, following an alleged shortage in the hotel funds, a warrant was issued for him, charging larceny of funds, according to officers.

Mr. Hackett, manager of the hotel, said he was apprised this afternoon over long distance phone that Brittain was being held in Gulfport.

INDIANAPOLIS BANK ROBBERS CAPTURED

became of the balance of the $30,000 loot, but are inclined to believe it was divided with confederates before the four came to this city.

Wired by Chattanooga. Arrest of the four resulted from a wire from Chattanooga giving their description and saying they had been traced out of Chattanooga presumably in the direction of Atlanta.

The authorities are said to have trailed them through baggage checks, and the Atlanta detectives made their arrest after the Scotts, Mitchell and Carter arranged to have their baggage sent to their room at a downtown hotel shortly after their arrival here in an automobile.

Though those arrested were armed, no resistance was offered when the officers entered their room. At police station, while the men were being questioned by detectives, a loaded revolver fell from the coat pocket of May Scott, who was sitting in a waiting room. This weapon was immediately seized.

May Scott is a young and pretty woman, strikingly dressed. Her companions also were well dressed. Two of them giving their occupations as aviators.

Indianapolis Advised. Chief of Police James L. Beavers notified Indianapolis police authorities last night and word was received that a man will be sent here immediately to take the suspects back.

When questioned for a statement May Scott said: "I will give you all I print it exactly as I give it out." Her statement was "I have nothing to say."

NEW BAGGAGE LED TO CAPTURE. Indianapolis, Ind., October 25.—(AP) Baggage so new as to be conspicuous led to the capture of three men and a woman at Atlanta, Ga., in connection with a $30,000 bank holdup here. It was learned that four persons descriptions of the robbers of the Union Trust company branch in West Indianapolis had bought new trunks and efforts of the quartet to escape by train were unavailing as they went southward were unavailing.

The robbers were marked chiefly by the courtesy of the bandits to their victims. One of the holdup men while training a gun on a room full of customers, projected a chair for the only woman in the bank at the time and invited her to "make yourself comfortable."

The Atlanta arrests brought the total number of those in custody to seven. The others are Jesse Stevens, Indianapolis, confessed driver of the bandit car, Grace Ford, of Indianapolis, a sweetheart, and Tony Mannes, city restaurant proprietor. Mannes is believed not to have been implicated.

determined to make the next 24 hours count for Atlanta's needy.

The special committee, headed by J. Sherrard Kennedy, won division honors Monday, reporting $10,000, which is 14 per cent of its $70,000 quota set for the committee. The division's subscribers division, George W. West chairman, reported $46,150.75, which is 13 per cent of its $363,800 quota. The utility division, headed by Allison Thorne, reported $2,392.00, which is 7 per cent of its $35,000 quota. The commercial employee division headed by Frank H. Neely, reported $232, or 2 per cent of its $11,600 quota. The industrial employee and public employee division made no report but promised to be heard from on Tuesday.

A report from the colored population group which was made at the same time and is putting on its own campaign under Chairman William F. Boddie, showed $835, which is 6 per cent of the quota of $13,900.

1,412 Pledges. District honors in the individual subscribers' division were won by Chairman Henderson Hallman, whose five teams reported $7,191.25, or 15.9 per cent of quota, although Walter W. Withington's district with $7,067.50, or 15.6 per cent ran him a close second. The other district chairmen in this division had the following percentages of their quotas: James Malone, 15 per cent; Harry Brewer, 13 per cent; Charles M. Boyer, 12 per cent; Eugene T. Johnson and House Russell, 11 per cent each, and Mark C. Pope, 8 per cent.

A total of 1,412 pledges were reported Monday. These were many who had never subscribed before, and many of the former subscribers increased the amount of their pledges. However, it was pointed out at chest headquarters that a higher percentage of pledges would be necessary if the total of $521,000 is to be attained by next Monday night as it is $119,000 more than was raised in 1925.

The luncheon Monday was conducted on a schedule time, team captains hurriedly gathering the reports of their team members, and turning their envelopes over to the auditors. After lunch the crowd joined in songs led by Arthur W. Faulkner. A glimpse of the good their work will do next year was afforded the men when Walter

A THREE DAYS COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.—(adv.)

Lieutenant Colonel Eugene Oberdorfer, executive officer, with the approval of Colonel Charles H. Cox. For the next three months, troops being forced to undergo training in company, rooms and in the main auditorium of the auditorium armory, the training will be of the nature best adapted to this condition in view. As spring opens and troops can take to the streets, extended order and similar training will be pursued.

Orders went out from regimental headquarters Monday night ordering the change to heavy uniforms and the beginning of the intensive winter schedule.

Chest Guards Poor Against Winter's Blasts As Shivering Scores Seek 'Army' Overcoats

Part of the "overcoat line" at one of the Salvation Army stores when winter's first onslaught made Atlanta's teeth chatter Monday.

When winter's icy blast tore through a gentle Indian summer Monday, it sent a stream of shivering humanity flying before it, out of fireless homes to seek the help that Atlanta always keeps ready for it at Salvation Army headquarters, supported by the gifts Atlanta will make this week through the Community Chest.

Forty-three overcoats were issued to shivering men and women in various stages of financial embarrassment, who applied at the three Salvation Army stores and at the Industrial home on Luckie street.

Most of the overcoats were "sold" at nominal prices in keeping with the Army's principles of self-help, which guard against pauperizing the man or breaking the spirit of the woman who is "down but not out," and will pull through, with sympathetic assistance, where "charity" might hurt.

One man who "bought" a second-hand overcoat is trying to support a family with three children on $15 a week as a night watchman and stuck to his lonely task cheerfully Monday night in an $85 overcoat that cost him half a dollar.

Another man paid $3 for an overcoat that two seasons ago brought $75 at a Peacocks clothing store. He has two children and an invalid wife under a doctor's care. "I earn $25 a week as a truck driver. Other overcoats were 'sold' in like manner. One was exchanged for four days work at the Salvation Army hotel. The new owner has been in Grady hospital for several weeks and is convalescing at the Army hotel. He is still too weak for any regular work so he has been assigned the task of airing the pillows used by the 150 or more who are guests at the hotel each night. When he gets a little stronger he will be given more strenuous labor but as long as he stays there he will be "earning his way" and when he leaves no one can fault him with having been "on charity."

The Army served 5,126 persons, 1,245 families, 198 women and 128 children in its rescue home, and returned 138 lost or run-away persons to their homes among other phases of its work during the first nine months of this year.

active interest in church work. She was a member of the Druid Hills Baptist church.

Funeral arrangements for Mrs. Henry had not been completed Monday night, Barclay & Brandon company in charge.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. Henry is survived by a daughter, Mrs. R. C. Bone, and two sons, Earl F. and Samuel C. Henry.

To Stock Georgia Forests With Moose, States Cook

Restocking of the Cherokee and Nantahala national forests with deer, moose, fish and other wild life and transformation of those two great north Georgia forests into hunting preserves, is the plan now under contemplation by the government, according to R. M. Cook, assistant district attorney, who is in charge of the legal end of condemnation of approximately 30,000 acres in that vicinity.

"The government already is stocking the streams with fish and a large number of moose will be secured and turned loose in the mountains to see if they will thrive under existing conditions," said Mr. Cook. "Of course the deer and moose could not be hunted in the national forests, but these animals pass under state control and state laws when they wander off the national preserves. Fishing will be allowed under permit in all but a comparative few streams or lakes which are in the game preserve."

MRS. FANNIE B. HENRY DIED MONDAY NIGHT

Mrs. Fannie Bartow Henry, 63, wife of W. T. Henry, treasurer of the Fulton Bag and Cotton mills, died suddenly Monday night at 7:30 o'clock at the residence, 1260 Fairview road, from a heart attack.

Although Mrs. Henry has not been in the best of health for the past several months, her condition was not considered serious, and Monday she appeared to be feeling much better than during the past few days. Late in the afternoon, however, she suffered the attack from which she died. Her death comes as a shock to a large circle of friends and members of her family.

A native of Macon, Ga., Mrs. Henry has lived practically all of her life in Atlanta and has always taken an

SAVANNAH MAN HELD ON MANN ACT CHARGE

Chattanooga, Tenn., October 25.—(P)—Lee Jones, 26, of Savannah, Ga., was arrested here today by local officers on a federal warrant charging violation of the Mann act. Jones is alleged to have carried a Savannah woman, 26 years old and her two young daughters here in a rented car. A companion, whose name could not be learned, returned to Savannah with the machine and was arrested on arrival there October 25.

Jones' act charges against Jones were dropped, it is understood, but the husband of the woman swore out the warrant in Savannah on the Mann act charge and arrived here yesterday. He met Jones on the street and, instead of calling a policeman, carried him by the collar into police headquarters. Government officers are expected here soon to take Jones in charge. The husband, who expressed an intention to divorce his wife, carried her and the children back to Savannah.

Reduced Her Weight

Without Dieting, Thyroid, Exercise, Massage, or Use of Harmful Drugs

"I can express my gratitude to you," says Mrs. H. K. Miller of Michigan. "I had tried several remedies and had been bled, but others told of the great results they secured from Rite-Wate, so I finally made up my mind to get some. I have reduced my weight 27 pounds, and feel like a different person. That slow dragging feeling has left me, and I feel full of pep and energy now."

Why be fat or burdened with useless overweight? Thousands of women (and men) have been made happy through Rite-Wate and are enthusiastic in their praise of this new, safe way to reduce. It's really surprising how wonderfully well it does the work, whether the reduction desired be 5 lbs. or 50 lbs. or more.

Rite-Wate is a Vegetable Compound in convenient tablet form. Guaranteed not to contain any thyroid, poisonous metallic salts, alkaloids or any other harmful ingredients. Possesses tonic qualities as well. Composed of one of the largest drug laboratories in the world, thus insuring a thoroughly reliable product. We have had more satisfied customers on this item than on any similar remedy that we have ever sold."

When so many women, once fat and ungainly, have found the way to reduce and enjoy the charm of a slender, attractive, stylish figure, why not try Rite-Wate and see what it can do for you? Remember—we guarantee it to be absolutely harmless. Money refunded if not satisfied with results within seven weeks.

Atlanta Has Best Equipped Business School In South—Southern Business College

The Popularity of the Southern Increases as Its Great Efficiency Becomes Known.

Do you know that Atlanta has the best-equipped Business Training School, and the most largely patronized, in the South?

Congratulations to our progressive and wide-awake city.

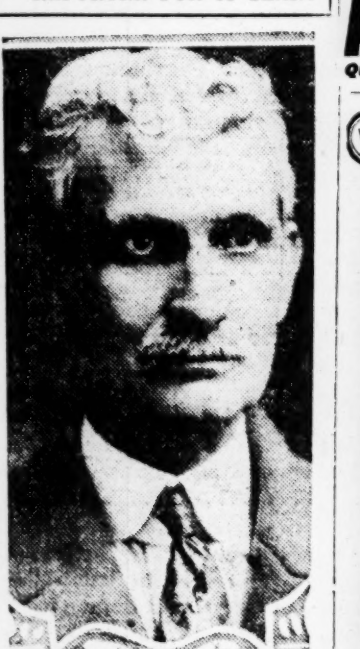

For the Southern Shorthand and Business University is truly entitled to this distinction, and this is the reason that young men and young women are coming to Atlanta from all parts of the country for their Business Training.

The management of the Southern felt flattered when Col. C. A. Greene, of Los Angeles, made the statement that he had "visited the leading Business Schools in the North, Central, Eastern and Western sections of the country, and had never found a school that is as safe, sane, sound and moral, coupled with the fact that it is efficient in its every phase and department, as the Southern Shorthand and Business University, of Atlanta."

But the management has since made a tour of leading Business Schools in much larger cities than Atlanta, and can now positively state to the young people of the South and the entire country that no school anywhere else in equipment or curriculum that of the Southern Business College, and none recently visited by the management is comparable with it.

The Southern is now all interested in a Business Education to be sure to visit the various schools and see for themselves. Then, next, ask the prominent business men of Atlanta about the efficiency of the Southern's

Seats for Spalding Recital Go on Sale This Morning

ALBERT SPALDING.

Seat sale for the concert by Albert Spalding, one of the foremost violinists of today, will start this morning at 9 o'clock at the Cable Piano company. Mr. Spalding will play here on Thursday evening at the auditorium-annex as the second of the Civic Concert series of musical entertainments sponsored by the Atlanta Music club. "Spalding played in Atlanta two seasons ago at one of the smaller auditoriums and hundreds of his admirers were turned away on account of the limited seating space," said Mrs. Cliff C. Hatcher, president of the club, Monday. "At the request of Atlanta and out-of-town patrons, we secured him for this year's program and are expecting one of the largest crowds that ever greeted a visiting artist."

"In bringing Spalding and other world famous musicians to the city," she added, "the Atlanta Music club benefits in no way financially. We do this purely for the cultural element it adds to Atlanta life and any proceeds which may accrue from public attractions is devoted to founding musical scholarships in the city."

Mr. Spalding was born in Chicago and inherited much of his musical genius from his mother who was for a long time a soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, under Theodore Thomas. At seven he began playing the violin and later his principal teachers were Chitti, the famous Florentine master; Nitrago in New York and Lefort in Paris.

When he graduated from the Bologna conservatory at 15 he received the highest honors ever accorded anyone since Mozart, and made his professional debut in Paris with Adeline Patti at the Chatelet. His American debut was made at Carnegie hall, New York, as soloist with the New York Symphony orchestra, Walter Damrosch, conductor, with which organization he has since appeared over 40 times. Since then he has appeared with great success in practically every civilized nation where music plays an important part in the national life.

SIBLEY UPHOLD IN THREE CASES BY APPEALS BODY

Three decisions, all of them affirming the decision of Judge Samuel H. Sibley of the U. S. district court here, have been handed down by the U. S. circuit court of appeals following its annual session here recently. Clint W. Hager, U. S. district attorney, announced Monday. Two of the cases, he said, were habeas corpus cases and the other a civil case.

One of the appeal cases was that of Michael Kennenbaum, who was convicted of using the mails to defraud in Savannah. He was sentenced to two years in the Atlanta federal penitentiary. Judge Sibley remanded him and Kennenbaum appealed from the judge's decision.

The other habeas corpus case was that of Edward Van Meter, serving sentence in the federal penitentiary following his conviction in Missouri on the charge of forgery. Van Meter, the district attorney said, acted as his own lawyer in preparing his brief and appeal papers while in the Atlanta prison. He requested also, it was pointed out, for privilege of appearing before the court of appeals in his own defense. This was denied, however.

The civil case was that of the Caps Manufacturing company, of Cornelia, Ga., which the government had sued to collect a federal tax. The company appealed from Judge Sibley's decision in granting judgment in favor of the plaintiff, Mr. Hager said.

North Avenue Church Seeks Cut in Price Of Enlargement Plan

Alteration of plans for enlarging the North Avenue Presbyterian church, which originally involved an expenditure of about $300,000, seemed likely as the result of a congregational meeting Sunday, when a resolution, offered by J. K. Orr, was adopted providing for appointment of a committee of five to evolve plans for the necessary enlargements at smaller cost.

The congregation favored the resolution with the amendment that the committee's report be made within six weeks. The following were appointed on the committee: John A. Brier, Wilmer L. Moore, Dr. Marion McH. Hull, Victor Smith and John K. Outler.

The additions desired, as explained by the Rev. Richard Orme Flinn, are for sufficient seating capacity in the church auditorium and Sunday school division to take care of increasing membership for the next five years. Dr. Flinn also suggested that an architectural design be employed that will eliminate traffic noises that are likely to increase due to growth of the Peachtree-North Avenue section as a business center.

SCHILLER NAMED VICE PRESIDENT OF LOEW INTERESTS

Selection of Edward A. Schiller, former Atlanta, to the vice presidency of Loew's, Incorporated, to fill the place of the late Joseph L. Rhineck, was announced Monday in Atlanta. Mr. Schiller's start with Loew enterprises was as manager of the Atlanta theatre. Out of the success of this grew Loew's expansion in the south, and Mr. Schiller was given charge of that territory, making his home in Atlanta, where Governor Hardwick appointed him colonel on assumed still larger proportions as his staff. More recently Mr. Schiller resided in New York.

"My Life Story"

Written by Rudolph Valentino

SIXTH INSTALLMENT.

(Copyright, 1929, by The Constitution.)
S. S. Holenland, Homeward Bound, October 15.—I suppose I have used the word "home" in various ways in this diary. There is something, after all, in the old adage that where a man hangs his hat is home.

That is, I think, particularly true of men. Women must make a home before it is home to them.

I have noted that women will fix up hotel rooms with little old touches, or even in the most briefly rented abodes will somehow manage to transform them into what they call "home." But a man can literally hang up his hat and feel as though he is at home. That comes especially to men who have traveled, or whose work has called them frequently from one part of the country to the other.

The boat is home to me now. It is taking me home. And it is, I hope, taking me back to my work. That, most of all, is home. A studio—the glancing and blurring of the lights, the hammering of the carpenter, the raw skeletons of unfinished sets, the striking of the lights, the shifting, painted people moving about here and there, the restless director corralling his forces, the noise of it all, the smell of it—that is really home to me.

No Real Vacation.
I feel, in a sense, that I have had no vacation whatever. Time doesn't constitute a vacation, nor does moving about from place to place, seeing sights and meeting people. Vacation is playtime, and play should be the end of all a vacation.

With me, this trip has been just a rush trip to see a lot of relatives. We really hadn't any vacation enjoyment out of it, as things go. And

That Baby You've Longed For
Mrs. Burton Advises Women on Motherhood and Companionship

My Baby!
How the heart thrills to these magic words—and where there is no baby—no chubby affectionate little arms—no star bright eyes brimming with love—no smiles and soft baby chuckles—how the heart hungers. Only the woman who has been denied the joys and blessings of motherhood knows the utter loneliness of it. The baby you have longed for. Read what Mrs. Burton says—act upon her advice.

For several years I was denied the blessing of motherhood," writes Mrs. Margaret Burton, of Kansas City. "I was terribly nervous and subject to periods of terrible suffering and melancholia. Now I am the proud mother of a beautiful little daughter and a true companion and inspiration to my husband. Believe hundreds of other women would like to know the secret of my happiness and I will gladly reveal it to any woman who will write me." Mrs. Burton offers her advice entirely without charge. She has nothing to sell. Correspondence will be strictly confidential. Letters should be addressed to Mrs. Margaret Burton, 1105 Massachusetts, Kansas City, Mo.—(adv.)

2,807,606 COTTON SPINDLES ACTIVE IN GEORGIA MILLS

Georgia ranked fourth among all the states in the number of spindles active during the month being exceeded only by Massachusetts, with 8,219,122; North Carolina, with 5,763,706; and South Carolina with 5,288,076.

Life guard overcomes effects of damp and cold

A beach patrolman at Atlantic City has found a way to avoid the muscle-lameness that results from standing around all day in a wet bathing suit.

"Just put on a few drops of Sloan's Liniment. Don't rub. It's the liniment—not the rubbing—that helps. You'll get relief right away. I've tried all sorts of other things, but nothing gets results like Sloan's."

Letters like this from hundreds of users of Sloan's tell of the wonderful relief the Sloan's gives to every kind of muscular pain.

Sloan's gives real and lasting help because it doesn't just deaden pain, it gets at the cause. Right to the place that hurts it brings a healing stream of fresh, new blood. Quickly and surely it carries off the "fatigue-poisons," takes out stiffness and drives away the aches and pains.

Get a bottle today and have it on hand. All druggists—35 cents.

FUNERAL WEDNESDAY FOR IRA C. DULL

Funeral services for Ira C. Dull, 28 popular young Atlantan, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Dull, Sr., who died suddenly Sunday night at the United States naval hospital at Port Royal, S. C., will be held at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning from the chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son, the Rev. Charles W. Daniel officiating. Interment will be in West View cemetery.

His death came after more than a month's illness, during which time several blood transfusions were resorted to to save his life after he developed blood poisoning from an infection caused by a carbuncle.

He was born in Atlanta and served in the navy during the world war. About three months ago he enlisted in the United States marines and was sent to Parris Island, S. C. For some time Mr. Dull was associated with Loew's Grand theater as assistant manager, and then became connected with the engraving department of The Atlanta Journal, later becoming a member of the editorial staff of that paper.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. R. S. Dull; one brother, Samuel R. Dull, and four sisters, Mrs. J. A. Broach, Mrs. S. F. Owen and Miss Ethel Dull, of Atlanta, and Mrs. R. Kottmann, of Memphis, Tenn.

Military services were held Monday at the marine barracks at Parris Island, and the remains will arrive in Atlanta this morning for funeral and interment.

LOG FREIGHT RATE CASE CONTINUED BY COMMISSION

The hearing of the Georgia public service commission's plea for lower interstate transportation rates on logs, which was conducted before the interstate commerce commission at Valdosta last week, was continued to January 5, when the case will be resumed at Jacksonville, Fla., James A. Perry, chairman of the state commission, announced Monday.

In requesting a lower interstate rate on logs, the Georgia public service commission pointed out at the hearing that the intrastate rate in Georgia is 300 per cent higher than that in Florida. Florida log shippers at the hearing also stated that the present interstate rate between points in the two states was too high, preventing them from shipping logs into this state, it was pointed out.

The hearing was continued until January, however, to give Florida shippers more time in the preparation of their data to be submitted to the interstate commerce commission at Jacksonville, it was said.

Four members of the state commission attended the Valdosta hearing as well as the two new commissioners-nominees, Albert J. Woodruff and Calvin W. Parker. The two who will not take their seats on the commission until about the middle of November attended the hearing merely in an advisory capacity, Mr. Perry said. Commissioners, in addition to Mr. Perry, who were at the hearing were: O. R. Bennett, Walter Macdonald and F. M. Price.

Sixteen Conference Games Slated for This Week

Georgia Tech Plays Only Intersectional Game This Saturday

Four Teams Will Play Non-Conference Games While One Enjoys Off-Day—Teams Begin Preparing for Coming Battles—Tech Leaves Thursday for South Bend to Play Notre Dame.

SIXTEEN members of the Southern conference were preparing this week for conference gridiron encounters Saturday, one intersectional game was carded, four members were to play teams outside the conference, and one had no game scheduled.

The sixth week of the football season saw three teams with clean slates. Alabama leads in the conference standing with four victories and no defeats, and the University of Tennessee and Virginia Poly each have two wins and no losses.

All three are to meet conference opponents Saturday in a continuation of the 1926 southern gridiron championship.

Alabama takes on Louisiana State at Tuscaloosa, Ala., Virginia Poly meets the University of Kentucky at Lexington, Ky., and Tennessee plays the Mississippi Aggies at Starkville, Miss.

The University of North Carolina and North Carolina State come together in their annual game at Chapel Hill, N. C., and Washington and Lee's Generals will entertain the University of Virginia at Lexington.

Tech plays Notre Dame. In other conference encounters, Auburn and Sewanee will come together at Montgomery, Ala., Georgia and Florida meet in their annual clash on Georgia territory, and Tulane plays host to the University of Mississippi at New Orleans.

Georgia Tech leaves Thursday for South Bend, Ind., for the feature intersectional game of the week with Notre Dame.

Virginia Military Institute goes outside the conference for a game with Davidson, and Vanderbilt and Maryland meet non-conference opponents in Southwestern Presbyterian university and Gallatin, respectively.

The University of South Carolina leaves the circuit for a game with the Citadel at Orangeburg, S. C. Clemson college has no game scheduled.

Sewanee provided Saturday's test by holding the strong Crimson Tide of Alabama to a 2 to 0 score after three consecutive conference titles, had crushed three strong contenders for the championship.

Georgia Tech came back from its slump of the previous week and its 21 to 0 beating at the hands of Alabama, by winning from the Generals of Washington and Lee by a 19 to 7 margin.

Virginia Polytechnic institute retained its runnerup position to Alabama by winning from Virginia, 6 to 0, and Tennessee's standing was not affected by its 39 to 7 victory over Centre, a non-conference eleven.

TIGER TRACK MEET PLANNED AT GEORGIA

Next Saturday in Athens the Red and Black of the University of Georgia will clash with the Orange and Blue of Clemson in the first cross-country meet of the season. Coach Bill Tate has been putting his men through hard workouts preparatory to the opening meet and the final try before Clemson meet was held October 22.

Fritz Orr covered the three-mile course in 17 minutes, 36 seconds, closely followed by Yonce, Green, Beaton, Heyman and Candler, who will represent Georgia in his first meet this year. The balance of the squad consisting of Barra, Bufington, "Hirley," Toy and Samuels, have been doing well, though the latter is out for the time being with bad ankles. Freshmen Young and Eberhardt are showing up remarkably well.

Georgia will, as she always has in the past, put a strong cross-country team on the field. It will take a mighty good one to beat her. Last year Georgia was third in the conference race held at V. P. I., and has high hopes of coming first this year.

The 1926 cross-country schedule of Georgia is as follows: October 30—Clemson in Athens. November 6—Auburn in Athens (tentative).

November 12—Tech in Atlanta. November 20—Southern conference in Athens.

December 4—Southeastern A. A. U., in Birmingham.

HAWK-EYE-ING SPORTS

BY DICK HAWKINS.
Rise of Another Napoleon.

Another famous ball player will have his fling at the managery of a major league club and if stature is any indication, another Napoleon is about to come into power.

Owen "Donie" Bush, former diminutive shortstop of the Detroit Tigers under the tutelage of Hughie Jennings, will supplant Bill McKechnie as pilot of the Pittsburgh Pirates, assuming his duties next year under a one-year contract.

Attempting to predict the success of Donie as a manager would be gross assumption, but one thing is certain—he has been one of the best shortstops the big leagues ever produced. When he was playing with Detroit in the great infield composed of Pep Young at second, George Burns at first and Jones at third there were few faster infielders in the leagues.

The combination of Bush to Jones to Burns was written on more double plays than could be counted in a short time. Bush was the only man we ever saw who could throw from any conceivable position and never pull the initial sacker off the bag. Sometimes he used to throw from positions which were apparently physically impossible. There were times when Donie Bush would boot the ball, but his errors in throwing could almost be counted on the fingers of the hands.

A great shortstop and a remarkably heady baseball player, Bush should make a great manager. He is stepping into a hard place in taking charge of the disgruntled Pirate outfit, but the midget should be equal to the task.

A Reluctant Glory.
There was one queer trick of fate at Grant field Saturday which was not apparent to the thousands who watched Tech crush the Generals in the greatest attack of the season.

These thousands saw Johnny Marshall cross the goal line and catch a pass from the hand of Bob Parham for a touchdown, but few knew that Johnny would rather have made that catch in almost any other game than in the W. and L. battle.

For three years S. A. Marshall, father of Johnny, of the Tornado, has taken his place in the stands with two thoughts in mind. First, for Tech to win; and, second, to see Johnny catch a forward pass for a touchdown.

Saturday Mr. Marshall was not able to attend the game. Such is fate.

Pulling for Pat.
This column made a grave mistake this morning in stating that Carter Barron is the third Barron brother who has played under the colors of Georgia Tech, but after all it might not be so much of a mistake as a prediction.

The third brother is not in Tech yet, but young Pat will be there in another year or two and then he will be the third. There, now, that is off our chest and all we hope now is that Pat will play at Tech as he has here for the last year and that our statement will be correct in the future perfect tense and we can call it a typographical error.

Gentlemen of the Roped Arena.
The town is filled with tin-eared gentlemen and other gentlemen with oral protrusions of the cauliflower type who are here for the athletic fiesta which begins tonight with a boxing card at the auditorium and ends tomorrow with a wrestling entertainment at the same place.

And judging from the looks of the young gentleman known as Fay who entered our sanatorium last evening with the shy admission that he is the man who killed Mickey Shannon in Louisville last year, Atlanta sport fans are in for a couple of evenings of entertainment for the next two days.

Fay is a husky looking youth with a mean face and a hard disposition. Frankie Murphy is not in for any picnic tonight. That is certain.

Dick Daviscourt and Jim Browning arrived in Atlanta yesterday for their wrestling bout at the auditorium Wednesday night and there is no secret about the fact that the man who loses that match is likely to lose several arms, legs or what not in the fracas.

Both Daviscourt and Browning, when consulted on the selection of a referee requested that the match be staged without a referee and that the winner be the only man left conscious in the ring at the end of the time. This, of course, could not be allowed but there is no question that the two ear-scramblers would wrestle under these conditions if they were allowed to do so.

PETRELS BEGIN WORK FOR TILT WITH FURMAN

BY ALTON REDFERN.
The Storm Petrels will play in Atlanta for the first time since the Tech melee—the first game of the season—when they encounter the Purple Hurricane of Furman, Saturday afternoon at Spiller's field in what is expected to be the hardest game on the Petrel schedule and certainly the most important. It will also be the feature game in the S. I. A. A. this week.

Furman is reputed to have one of the best eleven in the south, having already vanquished two members of the southern conference. And at the present time the football critics have all agreed that the Purple Hurricane looks like the best team in the S. I. A. A.

The Petrels, two-time champions of the S. I. A. A., will contest Furman's superiority Saturday.

The Birds are doped to lose but they have been doped to lose on numerous occasions and have upset "dope bucket" several times. Furman won from Georgia by the margin of a touchdown and Oglethorpe defeated the Yellow Jackets by a one-point margin. That is very interesting dope, especially to the fans of Atlanta; so a rare treat, indeed, is in store for the fans who journey out to Spiller's field Saturday to witness the conquests of Georgia and Tech in the feature game of the S. I. A. A. and the only game in Atlanta that day.

Indications are that it will be a great game, with two powerful offensive teams battling for supremacy. Billy Laval, coach of the Furman squad, owes his success as a coach to his wonderful off tackle plays which for the past 10 years have practically fooled the best teams in the south. Oglethorpe, too, is noted for its great offensive strength, scoring an average of 12 first downs in the first four games of the season.

The Birds resumed activities Monday afternoon on Hermance field, indulging in a lengthy signal drill and a short scrimmage against the Rats. The varsity was placed on the defensive in the scrimmage, for Coach Robertson will do all that he can to strengthen the Petrel defense in order that they may stop the powerful Furman eleven. A large portion of the workouts this week will be spent on the defensive for if the Petrels expect to lick the South Carolina boys they must stop the Furman offense.

The Oglethorpe casualty list is apparently vacated. I. W. Cousins is still nursing a sore leg but it is expected that by Saturday it will have recovered sufficiently for him to start the game at his old position of guard. John Goldsmith, varsity tackle, and whose name was on the casualty list for three weeks has been discharged from the infirmary and will be ready to start the game against the Purple Hurricane. His reappearance in the lineup will greatly strengthen the line. Indications now are that the Birds will be in the best possible physical condition Saturday.

PENN MEETS ILLINI TEAM IN FEATURE

Chicago, October 25.—(P)—The football juggernaut of the University of Pennsylvania, nemesis of western teams for a quarter of a century, threw its shadow tonight across the gridiron of the University of Illinois.

The team which routed Chicago ten days ago, and which in 20 games with the western conference teams since 1899 has lost but five, comes to the Illini stadium Saturday, and it is coming with a grudge. For one of those five defeats was a smart licking administered last fall by Illinois, when Red Grange galloped through and around the easterners to convince them once and for all that he was a football player.

Zuppke counted noses today and found his squad in good shape after the loss to Michigan Saturday. Successive tilts with Iowa and Michigan have given him no chance to point for the invaders, and because he has no Granges in his ranks this fall he faces the task of his career if the Pennsylvanians are to be turned back.

Michigan will give the east such a spectacle as Pennsylvania will give the west. The Wolverines go east to meet the Navy, and Yost will work this week toward the general development of his team, which showed all-around excellence in winning from Minnesota and Illinois, Michigan and the Navy both are undefeated, and both aspire to national honors.

Of three western conference tilts slated for Saturday, that between Minnesota and Wisconsin looms largest. The Badgers were driven by Littleton on attack. They showed a formidable offensive against Indiana Saturday for the first time this season.

But it needs much grooming. The Gophers, likewise, finally have hit the stride they failed to strike against Notre Dame and Michigan, and Spears promises a much more powerful team against Wisconsin than that which fell before early season foes. Wisconsin has lost no games, but it could not score against Purdue, whose defense is the weakest department of its game.

Northwestern, which beat Indiana, 20 to 0, at Evanston ten days ago, meets the Hoosiers at Bloomington and is confident of making a clean sweep of the "series." Thistlewaite, however, coddled his line tonight to weld it into a stronger offensive unit. Time and again against Notre Dame Saturday it let through opposing forwards who blighted the Northwestern attack before it got started. For Indiana this is "just another football season," despite the heroic endeavors of a new coach, and Page planned no shifts in his lineup in an effort to increase its effectiveness.

Ohio State regards Chicago only as a minor hurdle in its quest for conference honors, but Wile is arming his men with a defense against Sing plays, while already devoting some attention to the Michigan game, November 13. The Maroons rallied slowly from the ignominy of defeat by Purdue, and concentrated on a defense again: the slashing Buckeye assault.

Iowa began its preparation for Minnesota two weeks hence, in which the meeting of Carroll college of Wisconsin Saturday will be just an incident. Purdue, looking to the Northwestern game November 6, plays Indiana State Normal in an effort to make its good machine better.

Sandlot League To Hold Meeting

Members of the Atlanta Sandlot League are requested to be present at the meeting to be in the office of Sam Saltzman, secretary of the league, this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The schedule and places for next Saturday's games in the league will be arranged as well as many important matters discussed. All teams are requested to have a representative at the meeting so as to get the schedule and also bring in a list of the games his team have played so far this season and the record of his team this season. The standing of the league will be figured out at this meeting and will be published each week in the sports section of The Atlanta Constitution.

Donie Bush Signed Manager of Pirates; Starts Next Season

Pittsburgh, Pa., October 25.—(P)—Owen J. ("Donie") Bush, manager of the Indianapolis American association baseball club, has signed a one-year contract to pilot the Pittsburgh Nationals in 1927, Pirate officials announced tonight.

Bush will succeed Bill McKechnie, who was informed last week by President Barney Dreyfuss that his services would no longer be required. Pirate followers at the time expressed the opinion that McKechnie's discharge was an outgrowth of internal dissension in the ranks of the world champions of 1925.

Bush was prominently mentioned in connection with the Pittsburgh managerial berth, as was Art Fletcher, of Philadelphia.

In announcing Bush's appointment, Sam Dreyfuss, treasurer of the Pittsburgh club, said the contract covered only the season of 1927. He refused to make public the financial clause of the paper.

Bush, manager of the Indianapolis team for three years, formerly managed the Washington Senators. As a big league player he starred with Detroit at shortstop.

Bush, aged 35 years, a native of Indianapolis, began his baseball career with an independent outfit at Sault Ste. Marie in 1905. Late in 1908, after playing shortstop with Saginaw, Mich., Dayton, Ohio, South Bend and Indianapolis, he was drafted by the Detroit Americans. He had a good season with the Tigers in 1909 and broke into the Detroit-Pittsburgh world series that fall. He remained with the Tigers until the fall of 1921.

The next year he played with the Washington Americans and in 1923 was made manager of the Senators. After a year as Washington pilot Bush went to Indianapolis where, for the past three seasons, he managed the American association outfit. During his reign the Indianapolis club finished in second place each season.

BLU-STREAK

Another of the Famous Twenty-Two

The widespread popularity of Blu-Streak gasoline and Hyvis motor oil has built up the huge Reed chain of 22 filling stations. Motorists having once used Blu-Streak and experienced the more efficient motor operation brought about by this richer and more powerful gas demand it in the future. Drivers who try Hyvis, the 100 per cent pure Pennsylvania motor oil, and who learn that 1,000 miles of perfect lubrication can be secured from it, demand it thenceforth. To supply these insistent users more and more filling stations must be constantly erected.

Right now there is no well-traveled boulevard in and about Atlanta which does not have a Reed filling station on or near it. Go where you will you are never far away from this dependable source of motor fuel and oil.

One of the most up-to-date stations in the Reed chain is shown above. It is located on the corner of Ponce de Leon avenue and Jackson street, and serves the residents of the Ponce de Leon section and motorists who travel along Ponce de Leon avenue, on their way to Druid Hills, East Lake, Decatur and Avondale.

This station is perfectly equipped to render motorists exceptional service. Three visible pumps are placed in the center of the double driveway so that most prompt service can be given. These visible pumps guarantee the customer full measure. A drain pit is a part of the station's equipment making possible the easy and proper handling of cars brought here for crank case, rear end or spring lubrication.

In addition, a rotary hoist is available by means of which a car can be raised on a platform so that the owner may inspect the bottom without any effort and the car may be worked on without any crawling about.

The splendid location of this station for the convenience of motorists can be visualized when it is realized that this is the first filling station on Ponce de Leon avenue on the way from town. The station is managed by one of our most efficient managers who can always be counted on to give you every possible service and to render that service obligingly and courteously. This type of service, however, is no exception at Reed stations. It is the absolute rule. Drive into a Reed station today and see for yourself.—(adv.)

Browning and McLeod Will Arrive Today For Wrestling Show

Daviscourt and Paxos Ready For Performances Wednesday Night—Bitter Struggles Expected in Four-and-Half-Hour Program.

Indoor sport fans who follow the hit-and-get-away and the bone-crushing games will be in their glory for the next 48 hours. And, as the fellow said, all roads will be leading to the auditorium.

Right on the heels of the boxing show tonight, Johnny Contos, the big wrestling merchant from California, will offer a counter-attraction featuring four of the biggest men in captivity and two of the brightest local mat prospects for four and a half-hours of gruelling, spectacular sport that probably will add new laurels to his immense collection since he first invaded Atlanta early this year.

Mr. Contos was able to report Monday night that Dick Daviscourt and John Paxos were on hand, the former arriving Sunday and the latter Monday. Daviscourt is here for no other purpose than to lengthen his amazing string of victories on Atlanta mats by upsetting Jim Browning, the giant Kansan, in the two-hour main bout Wednesday night, while Paxos comes with the one idea of slaying the aspirations of Farmer McLeod, whose one and only appearance here netted a fall over Jimmy London, the incomparable Greek.

Browning in Today

Messrs. Browning and McLeod should register a local hostility during the day, for a few hours' rest before launching into their Herculean endeavors.

The big question right now seems to be whether or not Browning, with all his youthful vigor and eagerness to make a name for himself, can thwart the gigantic Daviscourt when they square off for action. Atlanta has yet to witness Mr. Daviscourt's massive shoulders snapped to the mat twice in the same evening, and it has come to believe that he is well nigh invincible. To win from him here would be to place himself in a commanding position as regards the shakels and the big matches, for he would then be eligible for a future battle with a man like London, Stecher or Lewis or some other equally famous grappler.

But Daviscourt is exuding confidence from every pore and declares he is as sure to win from Browning as he is to have a porthouse steak for dinner this evening.

Hectic Struggle

It is sure to be a hectic struggle, particularly if it measures up to most of the bouts staged here by Contos who seems to be a master at arranging close, even matches. The Paxos-McLeod affair, while not involving such nationally known elements, is up to a dead heat with the main event in the matter of entertainment. Paxos is a rising young Greek warrior with his heart set on a world's championship and he will battle to the last ditch. That is certain. McLeod's ability is not quite so well known though for a line on

May Be Manager

Brooklyn, N. Y., October 25. Uncle Wilbert Robinson's appointment as manager of the Brooklyn Robins for 1927 lacks official confirmation. A private war among the various owners of the club continues. S. W. McKeever, vice president and treasurer of the Robins, claims the "moss" at which "Robbie" was appointed was not a legal one. McKeever, who is ill in the Methodist Episcopal hospital here, claims he was not notified that the meeting was to be held. He heads the anti-Robinson faction and will protest that the manager's contract is illegal.

ARMY SEEKING EAST'S GRID CHAMPIONSHIP

New York, October 25.—West Point's football team is preparing for next Saturday's game against Yale with two objects in mind.

The Cadets want to avenge a long series of defeats at the hands of the Elis, and they want to establish a claim to the championship of the east.

Yale presumably will be stronger against the Army than against Brown. There will be no over-confidence to hamper the Bulldogs, which will return, as before the Dartmouth contest, to the status of underdog.

With Wilson, Harding, Hewitt and Cagle, a strong backfield, Biff Jones, in his first year as head coach at the Point has a fine chance to hang up a record of a season without a defeat. It is more likely, however, that Yale will again produce a form reversal and take the measure of the Cadets.

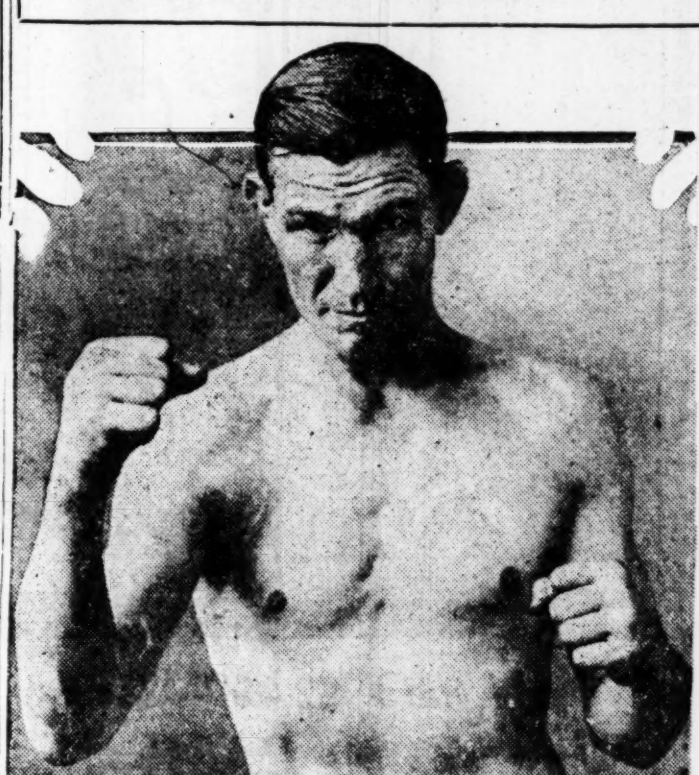

In case the Army loses or is held to a tie, the eastern championship, which doesn't mean much, but which everyone aspires to, probably will drop into the lap of the University of Pennsylvania.

The Red and Blue has only one more stiff hurdle to clear. That is Saturday's game with Illinois at Urbana. From then on, the Quakers, undefeated this year, probably can keep their title clean. The Illini are in sixth place in the conference standing, and in view of Penn's easy victory over Chicago, another inter-sectional victory should be chalked up for the east.

New York university has won five games, with a total of 122 points, and has been scored on but once. But the Violet has not met the stiff opposition found on the schedules of Penn and the Navy. Penn has rolled up 188 points to seven for her opponents.

Brown, having conquered Yale, Dartmouth, Harvard and Colgate yet to defeat before setting up any claim to eastern supremacy. The Bruinians have not yet been beaten, but their opponents, with the exception of Yale, have been of mediocre caliber.

FIGHTS FAY TONIGHT

Frankie Murphy, the old-time, who is still going strong, will meet Harry Fay in the 10-round headliner of the fight program at the city auditorium tonight at 8 o'clock. Frankie and Harry are not on the best of terms, and since each is a first-class leather pusher, business is sure to be lively at the auditorium when they measure each other.

MODERN FOOTBALL

BY BENNY FRIEDMAN

(Captain and Quarterback Coaches' 1925 All-American)

(NOTE)—When the three great coaches, Knute Rockne, Glenn Warner and "Dad" Jones, selected a 1925 All-American team, they were unanimous on one player. Benny Friedman, of Michigan, let the All-Star selection both as a player and as a coach. Friedman was the leading scorer of the Big Ten conference one of the greatest in the country for the year, though he had never called his own signal made an opponent's 20-yard line. In this series Friedman has written a book, "The Modern Game," which is one of the most famous football generalists of all time; one of the three great masters the game has developed; last year he scored 25 goals from placement. He is a dancer, a runner, because of his change of pace and straight arm, and a great blocker and a great blocker. This year his name for strategy places him as the leader of the Michigan players, but for the spectator, it makes the subtleties of football intelligible to the layman as he introduces the elements of the game.

TENTH ARTICLE

Genius of Bonehead

The basis of strategy is doing something that your opponents do not expect you to do.

That, apparently, provides a simple solution. By doing the unorthodox you would be doing the unexpected. But, that is not a practicable system at all times. There are occasions when a team will be doing the unexpected by playing orthodox football. It all depends upon the team. An ordinary team would have to do something unorthodox to pull the unexpected, but a team famous for its intelligence and strategic thrusts would at times do the unexpected by making an orthodox play.

If your team is famous for trick plays your opponents are going to look for tricks. If your team gets within the opposing 30-yard line, the defense becomes uncertain. Every player opposing your team will expect to see some trick uncovered and while the defense is busy watching for tricks you can often gain an amazing advantage by doing the thing an ordinary team would do. That, from your team, is the one thing your opponents never expect.

For the same reason some of the oldest plays in football often decide games. A certain play, in fact, Cornell, Yale, Pennsylvania, California, Notre Dame or any other institution where they are noted for the excellence of their football, becomes famous. It is generally adopted. But just as soon as a play is generally adopted a defense is developed to meet it.

As a result the play will not continue "going over" for many weeks. It will outstrip the defense by a few games and then everybody will be set to stop it. The play is then abandoned. After a few years it is sidetracked by everybody. Other plays take its place and these plays are soon succeeded by still others. The game brings new twists in play construction.

Resourceful coaches know that an abandoned play is as valuable as a new play. If your team is often not sufficiently rehearsed in the new one, and there will be bungling in its development, bungling and failure. Your players know the ancient play well. They may have used it in grade-school football. It is sure to work smoothly. Strategy frequently means violating "Poor" Strategy.

The revived play is often safer than a new play. There is danger in a new play. Plays Despite Hurt

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and Chicago Tribune.)

Mishawaka, Ind., October 25. An X-ray examination today disclosed the fact that Alfred Eminger, star end on the Mishawaka High school football team, had played through the entire South Bend-Mishawaka football game Saturday while suffering from a fractured skull and badly chipped vertebrae.

Although in a serious condition Eminger is given a chance for life by physicians. Eminger was injured in a practice scrimmage Thursday but seemingly recovered and was allowed to enter the game against South Bend Saturday. He was instrumental in pushing across the touchdown which gave Mishawaka a 7 to 6 victory. This morning he appeared dazed upon arising and was unable to give intelligible answers to questions asked him by his mother who called in the family physician.

TOM ANGLE IS DISABLED BY MALARIA

BY CARTER BARRON.

Only a light workout was on the books for the Yellow Jackets Monday afternoon, limbering them up following their victory over the Washington and Lee Generals Saturday with signal drills the main attraction.

Figuring that they are in about as good a condition as anyone would want to be in, Coach Alexander let his men off with a small amount of work but stated that a much harder session awaited them this afternoon.

Two Tech stars were absent from the field Monday afternoon due to injuries. Tom Angley, guard, was not in his uniform, and Firpo Martin, another Jacket guard, was also missing from the field. Angley is suffering with malaria but is expected to be able to make the trip to South Bend, where the Jackets play the Notre Dame eleven.

Tom has been suffering with malaria for some time but has refused to give up and Monday was the first day since the opening of the season he has missed practice. Since the first of the season, Tom has lost 36 pounds, where the Jackets play the Notre Dame eleven.

He is in possession of the best of the unwritten laws of football. A player can be good strategy but poor football. It all depends on whether it succeeds or fails.

A few years ago Notre Dame met Stanford at Pasadena in a New Year's game. Coach Knute Rockne called that year had a brilliant machine with the famous "Four Horsemen" comprising his backfield, Harry Stuhldreher was the Notre Dame quarterback. Stuhldreher was severely criticized for the play by the press of the country. The criticism was not deserved, for this play was really excellent in conception and its failure was due to a mechanical flaw.

Stuhldreher was called for a punt, but what Stuhldreher called for was a forward pass. He threw the ball low, Ernie Nevers intercepted it and Stanford got a touchdown as a result.

Stuhldreher was severely criticized for the play by the press of the country. The criticism was not deserved, for this play was really excellent in conception and its failure was due to a mechanical flaw.

Here is what the play was intended to be and what Notre Dame had practiced for weeks:

In the event that Notre Dame found herself in possession of the ball in front of her own goal line Stuhldreher was to forward pass. He was to fake a wide run to give Layden, fastest of the Notre Dame backs, time to get down the field and then he was to pass the ball 40 yards or more.

The only man that would have a chance to intercept the pass was the Stanford safety man, and there would be two or three Notre Dame linemen headed for the spot to down the Stanford safety man in the event of interception. Then the pass, while intercepted, would still serve the same purpose as a punt and carry the ball just as far. Notre Dame had a touchdown to gain and nothing to lose.

Unable to Run. However, short time before he called the play, Stuhldreher had twisted his ankle. As he brought his arm forward to throw the ball his ankle buckled and the ball floated on low over the scrimmage line, where Nevers caught it.

A twisted ankle beat the play and Stuhldreher was unable to execute the play. He was a stupid leader, but had the play succeeded he would have been heralded as a genius.

Teams that are behind in the score take long chances but I believe that a team in front has a far better chance of getting away with hazardous plays. I have seen losing teams hurl forward passes from behind their own goal line and get away with it, but more often they do not. You expect to see losing teams do those things; you never expect to see teams that are ahead pull them. A team a touchdown in front would have a better chance of completing a forward pass from behind the goal line than if it were behind. That would be bad football according to the unwritten law. It would violate the orders of coaches who tell their quarterbacks to take no chances when leading, but I believe that this and similar plays would be excellent strategy.

A long forward pass, like the one Notre Dame attempted, would get you the same result as a punt if the ball happened to be intercepted by the safety man and the ball should be so thrown that none but the safety man of the defense players would have a chance of reaching it. If you completed the pass it would be almost certain to give you a touchdown. The result would be a long lead over your opponents and their demoralization. The psychological effect upon this team during the remainder of the game would be invaluable to your cause.

The more desperate a team becomes the less opportunity it has to score. Strategy, however, most of the unorthodox moves it may make are anticipated. They are really the orthodox moves of a beaten team; they are unorthodox for a team in the lead and the lead can often be more firmly established by taking advantage of them.

Public Links Pay Well in New York

The income from greens fees for the four public golf courses in New York city averages $125,000 annually, which nets a profit of almost $50,000 after the maintenance expenses are deducted.

Danny Richardson, who died recently, was the only member of the New York National league team in 1886 who was less than 6 feet tall. All the rest were Giants in stature, which brought the nickname of Giants.

Slug-Fest Expected When Middleweights Mix at Auditorium

Irish Bennie Cline to Meet Battling Barnett in Eight Round Preliminary—Young Wallace Meets K. O. Moor—Show to Begin at 8 O'Clock.

"Irish" Bennie Cline has been matched to meet Battling Barnett in the eight-round preliminary to the feature ten-round bout between Harry Fay and Frankie Murphy, middleweights, at the city auditorium tonight, and with this final arrangement by Matchmaker Gossett the plans are complete for the show which is to begin at 8 o'clock.

Battling Barnett and Cline are both old-timers as far as being known in Atlanta is concerned. At the same time both of them are good scrappers and from the general appearance it seems that there will be one slambang slugfest at the auditorium when the going opening the first bout is heard.

The opener will be a six-round mix featuring Young Bernier and Battling Murphy. Then will come the Cline-Barnett fracas. This is to be followed by a fight between K. O. Moor and Young Wallace, who has been prominently mentioned within the last several days as the best man to meet the winner of the feature bout between Fay and Murphy.

Wallace Pleading. Wallace is a pleasing fighter from the Atlanta fans' standpoint. His stock of ring tricks would compare favorably in size with the repertoire of ducky wit in the possession of a good salesman. His ability to "grip" them, which is altogether something else, is equally as good. His last appearance here was the most pleasing performance seen in Atlanta in some time, so many of the fans said, and a repetition is expected when he measures the opponent picked for him tonight.

Then the difficulties between Harry Fay and Mr. Murphy are another feature that must be considered. These boys have formed a dislike for each other almost overnight, and there is every assurance that a battle in every sense will ensue.

In the first place, Harry doesn't like the insinuations that Frankie has been spreading. Harry declares that nobody has ever been faced with the task of making him come out of his shell, and supports his statement with records of wins, including one over Paul Berlenbach, the picturesque Astoria Ox who only recently delivered the light-heavyweight title of the world to Jack Delaney. His claim to this title in amateur circles was wrested from him by Harry in Boston in 1923, when the boy who meets Murphy tonight beat Berlenbach in three rounds.

Wins Decisive. Of course, three rounds was the limit, for amateur bouts are not allowed to go over four rounds, and only that for when the decision is close. There was nothing close about the decision of Fay over Berlenbach, however.

Then, Harry is mad, and when Harry is mad business is sure to be picking up. It was only last year that he gave attest to his power as a puncher. This was, unfortunately, when his right-hand blow over the heart of Mickey Shaanon killed the latter in a Louisville ring.

Thus, everything points to a regular slugfest. Tickets, placed on sale last week at Chess' place, have been going well, according to Matchmaker Gossett. The ladies attending the show accompanied by boy friends will be admitted free.

Eddie Hanlon will referee the bout, and the opener will commence at 8 o'clock.

Despite heavy rains of yesterday, the day was fine for the opening of the thirty-third annual field trials of the association and while 100 or more formed the gallery that followed the 104 entries, the largest for the chase futurity, more than 200 others were present to see the first "cast-off."

Howard C. Page, of Newark, N. J., is master of hounds, who sent the field, little more than pups, away on the quest that during the day roused excited red foxes from their dens and sent them scampering on for other climes of safety.

of work whether it be the first string men or the reserves. A final workout will be held Wednesday and the team will entrain for South Bend Thursday morning.

All other Jackets are reported to be in fine shape and ready to take on the Irishmen of Notre Dame. Parham is still wearing his famous "buga-boo" headgear to protect his famous nose, received in the Crimson Tide game a couple of Saturdays back, but here, showing against the Generals, no one is worrying about him.

The Tech coaches did not say whether a scrimmage was on for this afternoon, but it is expected that some of the boys will get a taste of that sort

WINS ADMIRATION OF ALL LOVERS OF PRETTY FURNITURE

Every woman in Atlanta, who has been through the heart of the store of Stephen Philibosian, Inc., at 581 Peachtree street, has been thrilled by the sight of some of the most beautiful furniture and rugs ever shown in the south.

Not only is each individual piece of such artistic beauty as to win the admiration of all who see it, but the stock of merchandise is so large and the variety for selection is so great that anyone, regardless of their tastes or preferences, can find furniture and rugs that appeal.

It is not the price appeal alone that is building a splendid business for this big store. Although by selling for cash the firm is offering quality merchandise at amazingly low prices, the beauty of the merchandise alone makes many a sale regardless of price.

Stephen Philibosian is a man of remarkable ability in the selection of artistic furniture and rugs. His dominating purpose is to provide distinctive merchandise at lower prices, and as evidence that he and his staff of trained buyers are doing this, one needs only to hear the comment of anyone who has been through the store and has actually seen what the firm is offering.

Stephen Philibosian, Inc., is now serving a patronage from many southern states. During the last thirty days there have been people from Alabama, North and South Carolina, Tennessee and Florida to visit this store and make purchases.

People have learned that it is wise to pay cash not only because they can buy furniture and rugs for so much less, but because such a policy enables the store to provide the newest merchandise as well as a great variety for selection.

Anyone anticipating the purchase of furniture, rugs or draperies should visit the beautiful store of Stephen Philibosian, Inc., and see for themselves that every claim this store makes regarding quality merchandise and lower prices is true.—(adv.)

Follow Nature's Rule

If gaining natural skin beauty is your aim

By NORMA TALMADGE

Foremost skin specialists urge this simple rule in skin care. Follow it for one week—note the improvement that comes.

BECAUSE all the world seeks natural skin loveliness today, natural ways in skin care now have supplanted the artificial ways of yesterday.

Thousands of the pretty complexion you see and envy are due to the simple rule in skin care given here. It has brought clear complexions to more women than any other method known.

For your own sake, try it, if only for a week—take the cake for a cake of soothing Palmolive, used in this way:

THE RULE... AND HOW TO FOLLOW FOR BEST RESULTS

Wash your face gently with Palmolive Soap, massaging it softly into the skin. Rub thoroughly, first with warm water, then with cold. If your skin is inclined to be dry, apply a touch of good cold cream—that is all.

Do this regularly, and particularly in the evening. Use powder and rouge if you wish. But never leave them on over night. They clog the pores, often enlarge them. Blackheads and disfigurements often follow. They must be washed away. Follow these rules day in and day out. Your skin will be soft and lovely—naturally colorful and clear.

BE SURE YOU GET THE REAL PALMOLIVE Do not use ordinary soaps in the treatment given above. Do not think any green soap, or represented as of palm, or olive oil, is the same as Palmolive. Remember that before Palmolive came, women were told, "use no soap on your faces." Soaps then were judged too harsh. Palmolive is a beauty soap made for one purpose only: to safeguard your complexion. 60 years of soap study stand behind it. Millions of pretty skins prove its effectiveness beyond all doubt. AN OBLIGING BEAUTY DOCTOR

A Beauty Specialist Gives Home-Made Recipe to Darken Gray Hair.

Mrs. M. D. Gillespie, a well-known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair:

"Anyone can prepare a mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and 1-4 ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off."—(adv.)

High Museum of Art Closes The Latter Part of This Week

By Bessie S. Stafford.

Throughout Monday conversation revolved around art, for to miss the opportunity of going to see the Grand Central Art galleries' exhibition at the High Museum of Art, in which the works of American artists are on display, is to neglect participation in Atlanta's cultural life. The public, after this week, must needs wait another twelve months to feast its eyes upon the achievements of the members of the National Academy of Arts, as the exhibition is only staged annually.

The opportunity to secure and choose from the works of recognized artists; and to live with these pictures forever more, is presented through the medium of this appropriate selection in the High Museum of Art.

A Miracle Happens.

When I chose to come south this winter to paint instead of going to Europe, said Miss Lucy Stanton, well-known artist, I had a faint regret that I should be cut off from exhibitions. But I find a miracle has happened. The High Museum of Art is filled with paintings by the artists whose works I enjoy, and I am in the midst of talks on art, and most of all, as Albert Sterner said, "I find myself delighting in the charming Atlanta audience, whose response has been immediate."

Miss Stanton, a painter of miniature art portraits, has been residing in Boston for the past twelve years, teaching "History of Art" in Milton academy. She was born in Atlanta and has a deep interest in its development as an art center.

"Soon there will develop in Atlanta an art studio with classes and lectures where students come from adjacent towns for work," she continued. "The exhibition is so well chosen. It contains characteristic western, New England landscape, decorative flower compositions, interesting figure paintings, black and white portraits, and a particularly interesting room of fine portraits by Leopold Seyffert, Weyman Adams, Sidney Dickinson, Albert Sterner and others."

"In 'Bonnet and Shawl' painted by Irving R. Wiles, and hung in the portrait room of the High Museum of Art, is rich in beauty and personality. It is a painting of the artist's daughter, done in a Sargentian manner. A turquoise blue gown and the pretty young girl have a far-reaching influence."

John E. Costigan's "Autumn Woods," with its wonderful lights, the channel reeds and woodland browns of the trees, the woman tending sheep in the foreground, please the layman as well as the connoisseur. It is the only picture Mr. Costigan sent to the exhibition. One of the finest paintings owned by an Atlantan, is in the collection of Woods White, another Costigan picture with sheep depicted in the foreground. It especially interested in the scenes around Plymouth, Mass., where a colony of artists have their homes, there is the gold medal award "Fish and Man," by Charles W. Hawthorne, considered one of the leading painters, and has taken important medals for his excellent portrayal of fishing types, one of which hangs in the home of J. J. Haverty on Peachtree road.

Malvina Hoffman's "Offrande." Mrs. Kate Green Hess gave a swift and charming explanation of Malvina Hoffman's bronze "Offrande" ("The Offering"), a study of the beauty of the human form, the interpretation of which can be left to the story-telling imagination.

Mrs. S. V. Sanford, president of the Athen's Women's club, and vice president of the Georgia Federation has invited Albert Sterner and Sidney Dickinson to talk before the fine arts committee of the Athens club.

Praises Museum.

"The High Museum is most wonderful," began Mrs. Sanford, and the strong appeal to the artistic nature is so great I feel sure it will be one of the greatest factors of appreciation of the finer things of life that has been brought to the south." She felt it impossible to single out any one painting. From the portrait of Zebby Jones, seen as one enters, typifying youth, activity, southern manhood, down to the portrait showing old age, were many capital pieces of work. Fresh from enjoying Albert Sterner's address in which she was able to appreciate the artist's viewpoint, Mrs. Sanford said, "In the name of the Athens delegation and of the people from over the state who have so thoroughly enjoyed this opportunity to view the best in American art, we wish to express our thanks to the Atlanta Art association."

Marvels of grace and simplicity are the seven canvases by Chauncey F. Ryder, remarkable for coloring and handling. Young Paul Trebilcock, whose art is displayed in three paintings entitled "Self Portrait," "Portrait of Mrs. Cabell," and "Meredith," is the American artist who painted the portrait of Mrs. Harrison Jones, an artistic conception of this charming Atlantan painted with her dark hair parted in the middle and a bright red Spanish shawl draped about her shoulders.

A large accumulation of fine pictures is on hand throughout this week at the High Museum of Art, and the pictures which have been purchased by Atlantans are distinguished works of art, representative of a very high standard.

Albert Spalding Expected To Play For Wounded Vets

Albert Spalding, world-famous young war veteran and violin virtuoso, may appear in recital at Base hospital No. 48, if plans now being formed are successful, according to Mrs. DeLos Hill, prominent official in Atlanta Music club circles, which is sponsoring his appearance here in concert on Thursday evening at the Auditorium-Armory.

Spalding served as a member of the

A. E. F. in Italy as an aviator and was decorated by the Italian government with the "cross and crown of Italy," the highest honor that may be conferred on a foreign-born citizen. The fingers which form the delicate phrasing for which his music is famous were used during the great conflict for peeling potatoes, and when it was discovered that he could play the violin, his fiddling often saved him from fatigue duty.

It is the custom of the Atlanta Music club to admit veterans from Base hospital No. 48 free to all its civic musical attractions. In addition to this, any blind person in Atlanta, when accompanied by a person paying admission, may be admitted without charge.

Slams Salaams

By Louise Dooly

"WHAT is the reason," a woman asked a man, "the price of cotton is so low?"

"The women," he answered promptly.

Then, with a twinkle in his eye—"We can't blame it any longer on the boll weevil."

"You are alluding, no doubt, to the women's clothes," the lady responded sedately, her sedateness an acknowledgment that the cotton situation is too serious a matter to be treated lightly.

"Yes, it is not an exaggeration to say that the amount of cotton money we could have counted on coming into this state (the conversation took place in North Carolina) had it been a good year for cotton sales would equal the cost of the state's road building program—$5 million dollars. We'll be out of balance that much. And North Carolina is an average state." (N. B. This is probably the first time a Tar Heel was ever heard to admit that his state is an average state. But when a statistical man wants to prove a thing with figures he is apt to be quite unscrupulous where he gets them.)

"Well, but this isn't the first year," the lady contended for her sex, "that women have worn silk stockings and underwear."

"No, but there are approximately 65 million women and children in this country (65 seems to be a sort of cotton 'kunjur' in this argument) and if they all wore cotton—"

He paused eloquently.

"Would you personally be willing,"

the lady interposed, "to exchange the aesthetic joy you get out of the study of a silk-clad feminine ankle for the—to put it mildly—sordid commercial spectacle of the women reduced to cotton hose?"

"Well, but it isn't just stockings, and he shifted his argument. "There's silk underwear."

"Exactly. And what is the reason?" queried the lady in a manner as practical as his. "It is labor saving; it is economy; just that. Women, too, are learning some of the jargon of economics. They know about evolutions—or revolutions—in industry. And what else is this situation about women and the kind of clothes they choose to wear? When ever an evolution or a revolution is in process, there are obliged to be certain adjustments that are uncomfortable. But do revolutionaries ever set the clock back for the comfort of the reactionaries? They do not. No more are the women going to save the cotton crop by wearing it. You'll have to find another and a bigger solution."

"And where do you figure the money is coming from to buy the women of the south their silk things when cotton can't fetch a price?"

"Your question is to the point and your logic is excellent, but I'd have more respect for it. If—" the lady's tone was a bit acid—"if it did not sound (economically) even more than the boll weevil, like an excuse."

"There has got to be a solution," he muttered.

"Yes, but you needn't look for it behind the women's petticoats. You that won't find the petticoats, much less the solution. Guess again."

IS IT A MONOPOLY?

I DON'T know why women who are city should be allowed a monopoly of the characterization.

When a man puts his mind to it, as John Macy (former editor of The Nation) does in his "challenge to women" in the November Harper's magazine, he proves that a man can be just as much more feline than the women, as he says, men are superior to women in everything; else they do or are.

The title of the article is "Equality of Woman With Man: a Myth" and it is interesting to note the sources of the alleged claims of modern woman-kind.

One source is the well-published attitude and expressions of a certain minority group of organized women whose main purpose at present, and whose favorite methods at all times, are anathema to the majority of women; certainly the organized majority.

His other source is the kind of woman, "lovely, wise, and fully emancipated, a musician and a teacher (Mr. Macy's description) who bounces her opinion of her sisters thus elegantly: "Oh, women are a mess."

MR. MACY seems to wish to start an argument; in fact he invites it; and no doubt there will be able women to respond.

But he has several good defenses. One is that he makes use of certain generalities, which, like most generalities, he would find it difficult to prove, but which the other side would find it equally difficult to disprove.

He asserts, for instance, on the basis of remarks like that of the "lovely, wise and emancipated woman" (who when she made her irritable remark about what a mess women are, had doubtless not had any male pupils in her classes that particular morning) behind the women's petticoats. You that

Fashions Sketched by Kay

I don't believe coats have ever been so lovely. It is a perfect joy to see them. There are so many models from which to choose that I would advise you to buy now, if you intend to have a new coat this winter, for the stocks are more complete than they will be later in the season. Today I have sketched from Keely's a very smart coat of tan bark livery luxuriously trimmed with rock sable. Very new and most flattering is the Queen Anne collar, which fades away into a band of fur that continues to the hemline. This is a most becoming model, and one I know you would enjoy.

other...there is an intrasexual antagonism, a critical hostility among women more sharply and dentally feline than the anomosity and irritability friction between the sexes."

THIS is only on the first page. But before he gets through, Mr. Macy, in order to get all the names he wants to call women, has to go to the dictionary. At least, he provides for his readers, both of the superior and the inferior sex, dictionary definitions of certain terms he would apply to women: pathological, I think, which, to those of us who are not psycho-analytically technical, are liable without this aid to be obscure. And I for one, was very grateful to him for his trouble. For me it is a long and wearisome journey to a dictionary, even though it be across the room.

HERE is another defense Mr. Macy surrounds himself with. When he has made a sweeping unpleasant statement about the women, he modifies it with: "That is, some of the women."

Women have no creative power in the arts. Women are poor cooks. Women neglect the home. Women have no sense of truth. "That is, some of the women."

And finally, Mr. Macy has another defense and that is, that he is a man of truth in some of the things he says.

THE character of his article as a whole is too much like judging a person by one of his opinions, or a community by the opinions of one of its people. And its tone would seem to suit, not the usual dignity of the publication which puts it forward, but one of those organs of the intelligentsia which do not call a writer "critic" if he is polite and which prefer that he do his literary fighting with a bludgeon.

Now, women are clever with the pen. "That is, some women." Even Mr. Macy admits a few literary accidents of genius among the inferior sex. And I am waiting confidently to see Mr. Macy's bludgeon countered—and countered effectively—by woman's shining and penetrative rapier.

The regular meeting of the Atlanta Woman's club was held Monday, October 25, at 3 o'clock in the club auditorium, which was beautifully decorated by Mrs. G. H. Brandon.

The president, Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith, presided. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Interesting reports from different chairmen were read. Mrs. Wilmer L. Moore, chairman of membership committee, reported several new members.

Mrs. Price-Smith spoke of the drive made for the Community Chest by Mrs. Beddingfield, and urged a liberal contribution for this worthy cause. Mrs. T. B. Brooke, chairman of applied education, introduced a motion that the club extend greetings to the University of Georgia, commemorating the 125th anniversary of continuous courses of study offered by the institution, to be observed November 27.

Mrs. Smith introduced Mrs. Seydell, who has recently returned from a European trip. MUSIC PROGRAM OF THE BEAUTY.

It was a program of rare beauty at the Woman's club Monday afternoon—Nelle Womack Hines in a presentation of her songs. It almost deserves the title of an "all Georgia program" for poet-composers, except Enrico Leide, and since he came from "Sunny Italy" and longed to sing just 10 degrees removed from Georgia, he can be classed as a Georgian. Mrs. Hines assembled around her for this program Atlanta's foremost artists.

Susan Bowden Johnson, Solon Druckenmiller, Enrico Leide, Mrs. Barker, Mrs. Downman, Mrs. Mary Griffith Dobbs, Ruth Dabney Smith and from College Park, Florence Golsen Bateman, Mrs. Clarence W. Wall was the accompanist. The ensemble work was excellent. Solon Druckenmiller in his inimitable style sang "When Mary Sings," "The Maiden and the Nightingale," "To Know," "Oh, My Lady," and "Why Do I Love You?" Susan Bowden Johnson delighted the audience with her interpretation of "White Dove" and "Dear Little Babe," a violin obligato played by Ruth Dabney Smith. Enrico Leide, with that magical skill of the bow, transported his listeners to the far orient, playing "Cute Oriental." These songs were artistically brought to the audience back to the romance of the minuet with Beethoven's "Minuet in G." Mrs. Charles Downman rendered an accompaniment rare in atmosphere. Closing the program, Solon Druckenmiller sang "Within" and "I Only Know," assisted by Mary Griffith Dobbs at the harp.

Ruth Dabney Smith, the violinist, played "The Little Bells," a violin obligato played by Ruth Dabney Smith. Enrico Leide, with that magical skill of the bow, transported his listeners to the far orient, playing "Cute Oriental." These songs were artistically brought to the audience back to the romance of the minuet with Beethoven's "Minuet in G." Mrs. Charles Downman rendered an accompaniment rare in atmosphere. Closing the program, Solon Druckenmiller sang "Within" and "I Only Know," assisted by Mary Griffith Dobbs at the harp.

Just before the program, Mildred Seydell interestingly told of the musical celebrities she met while in Europe.

Fair and Warmer Weather Today, Says Forecaster

With the return to sunny southern weather predicted by the local bureau for today, crack frosts will hang heavy with camphor-smelling winter overcoats that were brought out of summer lairs by the polar scare penetrating the warmest blooded Atlantans Monday.

"Fair and considerably warmer" is today's weather forecast for Atlanta and vicinity by C. F. von Herrmann, meteorologist of the local United States weather station. Not satisfied with belittling the endurance capacity of Monday's wintry blast, the weather man stated it was far from being the lowest October temperature witnessed in Atlanta, which is 28 degrees, while Monday's low was 26 degrees, reached some time between 5:30 and 6 o'clock in the morning.

There was sufficient reason for dragging out the old coat, however, for the mercury marked the freezing point by only 4 degrees and never got over 50 degrees throughout the day. Temperatures today will range from 40 to 65 degrees, and the weather man assured the continuance of mild weather for the next few days. The cold wind which hit Atlanta with a 40-mile wind was caused by low pressure and storm disturbances in Texas.

FAMILY AWAKENED BY BURNING HOME

Raymond Dozetaz, of 440 South Pryor street, and members of his family early Tuesday morning narrowly escaped death or serious injuries when their two-story residence caught fire. Awakened by the noise of falling timbers, and by the roar of the flames, Mr. Dozetaz and his family were forced to leave the house scantily dressed.

Fireman W. E. Jones, 32, of No. 10 company, was cut severely over the right eye when struck by a piece of roofing while fighting the fire. He was carried to Grady hospital in Chief Cody's car, and after receiving treatment returned to his home at 618 Simpson street.

Mr. Dozetaz said that the house was insured. He and members of his family were provided with temporary quarters by neighbors, who also furnished spare clothing. The house was badly damaged by the flames, the upper story and roof bearing the brunt of the fire.

CHICAGO CENTER OF ACTIVITIES IN SENATE RACE

Chicago, October 25.—(AP)—The guns of senatorial campaigns are focused on Chicago as the last week of pre-election activity begins.

Legislation where the switch making is largely over, republican and democratic parties centered their efforts on getting out the vote.

J. T. Smith, republican senate nominee, and Hugh S. Magill, independent, planned to spend the entire week speaking in Chicago. Speakers for George E. Brennan, democratic nominee, not yet able to appear publicly because of a leg injury some weeks ago, launched an assault on Smith in Chicago in which they stressed his variance with Cook county republicans on the prohibition issue.

Decentralizing Industry To Help Southern Farmer, Declares Elon H. Hooker

Manufacturer, Here for Convention, Urges Use of Concentrated Fertilizer
To Rebuild Soil.

BY J. RUFUS HARDY.

Decentralization of great industries, which already has loomed over the horizon, is bound to help the south and most of all the southern farmer, Colonel Elon H. Hooker, multi-millionaire manufacturer of New York, said Monday night.

Colonel Hooker arrived in Atlanta Monday afternoon to attend the Southern States Fertilizer league's second annual convention, which will open Wednesday at the Biltmore hotel. The convention will be an anniversary celebration of Theodore Roosevelt, and Colonel Hooker, who was an intimate friend of the late president, will make one of the principal addresses during the convention.

Colonel Hooker has given much study to the great industrial problems of the country and while his views of what will help the south may seem futuristic, many of them are, to say the least, reasonable. He talks about big things in a big way and his ideas are to the point and without flavor of sectionalism.

Problem of Soil.
One of the great problems of the south today, as Mr. Hooker sees it, is the ability to replenish the rapid decrease in soil fertility. Already soil in the southland is beginning to show the great strain of years of taking away nitrogen through plant life without replenishment, he says.

"This must be changed, and that change must come soon," Colonel Hooker declared. "With that change must come an education of two factions in the country, fertilizer manufacturers and farmers. And with the education of these two factions will come a great change in the industrial south."

"There is being taken from the soil of the south 9,000,000 tons of nitrogen yearly and only 5,000,000 is being put back. The replacement comes largely through plowing under legume crops and commercial fertilizer and at present there is only 200,000 tons of nitrogen supplied in commercial fertilizer over the country."

Concentrate Fertilizers.
"Fertilizer companies have practically reached their full capacity for manufacture of nitrogen, unless there is a great change in the manufacture of commercial fertilizer, the manufacture of concentrated fertilizer. At present fertilizer companies are fighting this move because it will mean a complete change in their equipment."

and farmers are fighting it for they believe it will not suit their purposes." Illustrating this point with a short problem in arithmetic, Colonel Hooker explained that on a 150-acre farm the average farmer uses 15 tons of fertilizer at a cost of $427, whereas the same food value for plants would be received in three tons of concentrated fertilizer at a cost of $202.

The manufacture of concentrated fertilizer at Muscle Shoals will effect a saving of $30,000,000 to the southern farmer, and with the plant at Muscle Shoals expanded to its fullest capacity the saving would be $150,000,000 yearly, he declared. And with this factor at work it will not mean that enough fertilizer will be manufactured for use on southern farms, but it will be a great step toward the time when enough nitrogen will be furnished the farmer to keep the soil in its best condition.

"Muscle Shoals just happens to be the great keystone in this stupendous undertaking," Colonel Hooker continued, "and at present it is one of our greatest national issues. Perfection of this great industry there, which will not nearly supply the needs, will bring about its perfection at other points over the country, with the final result that the real resources of the south industrially may be marshaled and the south placed in the forefront of the nation."

JUDGE DECLARES BELIEF IN AIMEE

Los Angeles, Cal., October 25.—(AP) Superior Judge Carlos S. Hays, friend and adviser of Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, accused of criminal conspiracy, today as a defense witness at her preliminary hearing, gave the first sworn testimony of belief in the religious leader's story of having been kidnapped last May.

Deputy District Attorney E. J. Denison, cross-examining the judge for the prosecution, asked him:

"Do you believe that Mrs. McPherson was kidnapped?"

"I have no reason to believe otherwise," replied Judge Hays.

But that was not enough for Denison, and he repeated his question, this time drawing a direct "Yes" from the jurist.

Judge Hays contradicted several statements made on the stand by Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Sell, confidante with the evangelist, who has testified for the prosecution.

These contradictions dealt principally with the substance of conversations between himself and Mrs. Wiseman. One was the report of a telephone conversation between himself and Mrs. McPherson, Mrs. Wiseman said that Mrs. McPherson had told the judge to get in touch with her. Judge Hays denied it.

Outside the court, the main development of the day was the report of the disappearance of letters attributed to Judge Hays and addressed to Mrs. Wiseman, held by the prosecution to be produced in evidence. This was the fifth time documents bearing on the case have been reported lost, stolen or destroyed.

MILK AND WATER ARE LIVE ISSUES IN NEW YORK RACE

New York, October 25.—(AP)—The final week of the New York state political campaign opened tonight with Governor Smith, democratic candidate for reelection, using the issue of New York's alleged adulterated milk supply for an attack on his republican opponent, Ogden L. Mills, who, in turn, concentrated his fire on the governor's plan of water power development.

CHURCH GROUNDS SCENE OF SUICIDE OF BANK PRESIDENT

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)
Toledo, Iowa, October 25.—William A. Dexter, president of the First National bank of this city and interested in the Garwin State bank, which was forced to close its doors this morning, committed suicide on the Rose Hill church grounds some time this morning. His body was found at noon by a farmer.

Dexter had been summoned to Gar-win in connection with the closing of the bank there and ended his life while on his way home. Worry over the closing is supposed to have been the cause of the deed.

Frozen assets caused the Garwin bank to close.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Annie Kwinski of 526 1st Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., writes that she became so weak and run-down that she was not able to do her housework. She saw the name Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the paper and said to her husband, "I will try that medicine and see if it will help me." She says she took six bottles and is feeling much better.

Mrs. Mattie Adams, who lives in Downing Street, Brewton, Ala., writes as follows: "A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and since taking it I feel like a different woman." With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grandchildren, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds full rich life of her own. That is, her health is good.

Thousands of women past fifty, say they owe their health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

POWER TO DISMISS LEFT TO PRESIDENT

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, October 25.—The power of the president of the United States to dismiss postmasters and some other appointive federal officers without the consent of the senate was upheld by the United States supreme court in a six-to-three decision today.

This point was left vague by the framers of the constitution and has been a controverted matter for 150 years since. Today's decision was made by the court in passing on a suit by the late Frank S. Myers, appointed postmaster at Portland, Ore., by President Wilson, who later removed him summarily after an investigation by postal inspectors. Myers sued for his pay for the full four years for which he had been appointed, contending that as he was appointed by the president and confirmed by the senate, the senate must also concur in his removal. He died shortly thereafter and his heirs continued the suit, losing it in the court of claims and now again on appeal to the supreme court.

Decision Called "Revolutionary."
Justice McReynolds, who was Wilson's first attorney general and who was appointed to this supreme court by Wilson, contended that his former chief had exceeded his powers in removing Myers. He attacked the decision of the court, describing it as "revolutionary."

"After today," he said, "no man can tell what are the powers of the president and congress. Many officeholders are now subject to removal at the caprice of the president. Yesterday we supposed we had a government of specified, limited powers. Today no one knows. It is an amazing proposition."

Those whom McReynolds believes are now subject to summary removal include members of the interstate commerce commission, controller general, who is appointed for a five-year term and cannot be removed by law, except through an act of congress; judges of the court of claims, all territorial courts, judges of the District of Columbia, members of the board of tax appeals, judges of the court of claims for China, army and navy officers like the chief of staff, appointed for a specified period, and all postmasters except those under civil service.

"A certain repugnance must attend the suggestion that the president may ignore any provision of an act of congress," McReynolds said. "To declare the president vested with indefinite and unlimited executive power would extend the field of his possible action far beyond the limits observed by his predecessors."

Legal Minds Battle.
The tense scene in the courtroom as McReynolds thus attacked the majority opinion gave some indication of the terrific battle of legal minds that must have gone on while the court was wrestling over its decision in chambers. The case was the oldest on the docket, going back more than two years. Unable to agree after the first arguments, the court ordered the case reargued and called in Senator Pepper, of Pennsylvania, former president of the American Bar association and one of the best constitutional lawyers in the country, to argue the case as a friend of the court. Pepper took the side of the minority.

Black Butterflies

INSTALLMENT XXXII.
MORBID FANCIES

David shuffled into the room, wearing hospital slippers, the gay red bathrobe, and his widest grin. Something about that grin brought a lump to Dorinda's throat.

Under the eyes of the doctor and Mrs. Bradley, David approached the bed. His left arm was in a sling and he walked with a stiffness not wholly explained by the flopping slippers. He bent over the bed, laid his right hand on Dorinda's shoulder, and for a moment rested his cheek against hers. She understood. This was grandstand play for the benefit of the two spectators. Then he straightened, drew a deep breath, and smiled down at her.

"The worst of it's over," he said robustly, "and we're set for home. The doctor thinks we'll be able to travel by Monday in a couple of staterooms, with a nurse along to look after us."

"How far are we from home now?" It wasn't at all what she had meant to say, but it seemed the only speech that would pass her dry lips.

"About a hundred and thirty miles."

"It seems a million."

"I know."

Parker pushed a chair toward him and David sat down, took the hand that lay on her breast, and held it as he talked on. "But we must try to be patient. We've got a whole lot to be grateful for."

"I know—I might have killed you."

"My dear girl," he spoke almost sternly, "get such nonsense out of your head! There's absolutely no blame for you in this accident. I told her that," Doctor Parker boomed. "We'll show her the newspapers tomorrow if she doesn't believe it."

"I guess we won't do that. She'll have to take our word for it," David smiled.

"O, I'm not morbid enough to think I'm responsible for the collision. I suppose no one could have got out of the way, with all that ice and the ditch there. But if I hadn't insisted on starting—"

"Forget it. Such talk is just as morbid as the other. Promise me you will try to drop the whole thing from your mind."

"I'll try—but how can I?" The hunched and bandaged head moved restlessly on the pillow. "I see that terrible car all the time—coming toward us—"

"I'm going to forget it, and if I can you can. Fasten your mind on something else. Tomorrow, they say, you can sit up, and we'll play checkers or jackstraws."

"Time's up!" Parker approached them peremptorily. "Kiss her goodnight and get out, young man. You're a mighty lucky pair, if you ask me."

David kissed her goodnight—that is, the cheek again rested lightly against hers, and to both observers the caress seemed more eloquent than the more conventional one would have been. Dorinda closed her eyes and set her jaws. She wanted to cry—but that condition was not significant. She could have cried over anything and everything just now. But when the gay red bathrobe had vanished through the door she felt increasingly forlorn and lonely. She was glad Alice Bradley was there; glad when the nurse returned from her walk; even glad when Doctor Parker, having hidden her a boisterous goodnight, dropped in again an hour later to do it all over before he left the hospital. Incidentally he was moved to utter a tribute to Godard.

"That husband of yours is a pippin. But I guess it doesn't surprise you much to be told that," he added with a knowing look. "You'll appreciate him some day when you hear the whole story of this business."

Dorinda murmured faintly that she appreciated him now and subconsciously recalled George Eliot's remark about the strain put on the affections by a different taste in jokes. Though she had insisted that she was not morbid, morbid fancies filled her mind. She even resented the discovery of her own returning strength. What right had she to get off almost scot free when two victims of the accident were in their graves—she who, however clear she might be of responsibility for the actual collision, had at least caused the accident by being in a certain spot at an instant when there was every reason why she should have remained eighty miles away from it.

The next morning she decided that, after all, she had not got off as easily as she had thought. She was to sit up for the first time, and her husband was graciously permitted to come in and eat luncheon with her. To the nurse and Doctor Parker the occasion seemed one for boisterous rejoicing, and though she was still in an abyss of depression Dorinda was loyally trying to play up to this conception. For some reason, to which she had attached no importance, she had not been permitted to look into a mirror. Now, as the final stages of her toilet approached, she abruptly demanded one. The nurse put on an expression of elaborate unconcern.

"There doesn't seem to be a hand-glass around," she said with a roving eye. "But you don't need one. There isn't much variety in the way of arranging bobbed curly hair, is there? You're mighty lucky to have hair that curls naturally," she earnestly expounded. "I've learned lately that bobbed hair which has to be artificially waved is more of a nuisance to the wearer than any other kind."

Her patient refused to be drawn into an abstract discussion on bobbed hair.

"I wish you would get me my hand-glass," she persisted. "It must be somewhere in my luggage." As she caught the expression on the nurse's face her voice sharpened. "Good heavens," she cried, "am I disfigured? Is that what all those bandages and ice packs mean?"

"No, no, nothing like it," the nurse hastened to assure her. "Mrs. Goddard, you simply must not let yourself get so excited over every thing that comes up. There's no real disfigurement and no danger of any, but—"

Mrs. David Goddard abruptly changed from a reasonable patient to a young person who attached immense importance to having her own way.

"Please get my hand-glass," she said. "I insist on seeing how I look."

"I'll get it," Miss Dunbar agreed, "but first I must tell you the conditions. You don't look natural and you won't for a few days longer, because there has been a great deal of congestion and it has settled in your face. It's getting better every day and it will all be gone in another week or so. But there's no denying that at present it would be hard to tell you and little Topsy apart. I'm explaining this so you won't be worried when you see yourself. There's absolutely nothing to be disturbed about. Now, if I get the mirror, will you remember that you look a hundred times worse than you are?"

"I'll try to,"

When the mirror came Dorinda looked into it and received the shock of a sudden heart drop. Unwarned, she would not have known that these black and swollen features were her own. She threw down the mirror.

"I don't want to see any one. I won't see any one."

"Your husband has seen you already, you know," Miss Dunbar reminded her with nice insight. "So now the first shock is over for you both. He's all ready to come in and straining at the leash. You'd better carry out your program."

That was wisdom and Dorinda permitted herself to be injected into the flame-colored kimono, but her expression when David entered in the glow of the red bathrobe was distinctly sulky.

"I call this rubbing it in," she muttered as he greeted her with a cheerful "hello" and dropped into his chair at the table with successful casualness. "I've no right to expect you to face me and eat at the same time."

"I could show you a color scheme up and down my left side that beats yours to a frazzle," David assured her as he passed the toast. "You're just a nice, ordinary coffee color. I'm blue, and green, and yellow in rich mass effects. But I'm all done up in plaster now, so don't ask to see it," he added with a debonaire smile.

COTTON CROP ESTIMATED AT 17,454,000 BALES BY U. S.

New Forecast Places Output At Highest Mark in History

Washington, October 25.—(AP)—A cotton crop of 17,454,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight is indicated for this year, the department of agriculture announced today.

The forecast was based upon data concerning condition, probable yields, ginnings and other factors, as of October 18, which indicated a yield of approximately 176.7 bales of lint cotton per acre. No condition figure was announced.

The previous report on indicated production based on October 1 conditions placed the crop at 16,627,000 bales and the acre yield at 168.4 pounds. Last year's crop was 16,103,679 bales, and the acre yield 167.2 pounds.

"There is no question now that the largest crop in the history of the country has been grown," said the crop reporting board in commenting on their report. "On the other hand, the low price and scarcity of pickers, especially in the western part of the belt, will probably result in a considerable quantity of the lower grades not being picked."

"The present estimate of 17,454,000 bales refers to the indicated total ginnings for this season and is subject to some uncertainty with regard to how much of the crop produced will be harvested. Because of the low price cotton farmers are discouraged and may not be disposed to pick the last remnants of the crop, even if they can do so. In consequence of elements of uncertainty with regard to the picking of the entire production of cotton, the crop indicated on October 18, ginned and to be ginned, may vary somewhat from the final figure."

The indicated production by states follows: Virginia, 45,000; North Carolina, 1,200,000; South Carolina, 1,170,000; Georgia, 1,470,000; Florida, 28,000; Missouri, 235,000; Tennessee, 480,000.

Alabama, 1,400,000; Mississippi, 1,750,000; Louisiana, 760,000; Texas, 5,400,000; Oklahoma, 1,060,000; Arkansas, 1,530,000; New Mexico, 79,000; Arizona, 105,000; California, 122,000; all other states, 20,000; Lower California (Old Mexico), 80,000.

Washington, October 25.—(AP)—Cotton of this year's crop ginned prior to October 18 amounted to 8,722,000 running bales, including 258,199 round bales counted as half bales and excluding linters the census bureau announced today.

The ginnings by states follow: Alabama, 908,088; Arizona, 37,008; Arkansas, 728,904; California, 42,036; Florida, 21,973; Georgia, 919,520; Louisiana, 512,000; Mississippi, 1,036,392; Missouri, 78,135; New Mexico, 12,773; North Carolina, 497,101; Oklahoma, 333,426; South Carolina, 544,986; Tennessee, 183,733; Texas, 2,844,331; Virginia, 9,630; all other states, 7,725.

Total stock sales 1,086,700 shares.

New York, October 25.—(AP)—Stock prices drifted lower in today's market, one of the quietest sessions in recent months. Uneasiness over the future trend of business and election uncertainties were among the many reasons assigned for the liquidation of stocks. A bearish interpretation also was placed upon the government estimate of a cotton crop of 17,454,000 bales, the largest on record, but cotton prices actually closed at small net advances after dropping about $1.50 a bale immediately after the publication of the report.

The sharp deficit reserve shown in last Saturday's clearing house statement had no effect on the call money market, which ruled unchanged at 4 1/2 per cent.

U. S. Steel common failed to respond to unconfirmed rumors of a large order for 100,000 shares of the company's stock, which was expected to be sold at 137 1/2. Acute weakness cropped up in some of the independent steels.

Stocks were again under pressure on renewed talk of price cuts and decreased production and sales. General Motors dropped from 147 to 144 1/4 and then rallied to 146; Mack Trucks fell down from 94 to 91 1/4 and snapped back to 93; Willys-Overland preferred sank to a new low at 88 1/2, and Indian Motocycle at 16 and White sagged a point.

E. church will meet in the First church at Dayton, Ohio, which is just being completed on an elaborate scale and at a cost of $125,000, starting October 29 and continuing through Sunday, October 31. The Rev. Childers is the present pastor of the First church, under a ruling which provides that no pastor within the district be allowed to remain in any charge longer than five years, according to a statement by Bishop Joshua H. Jones, of Georgia, who will preside at the Dayton conference.

More than 1,000 members of the Ohio church consist of migrants from the south, and especially from Georgia. Bishop Jones stated Monday.

With the others of their race they have made the churches of Dayton, Cleveland, Columbus, Springfield and Cincinnati well thought of by leading negroes, who attribute the prosperity of their race in the north and south to their faith and reverence in God, the bishop declared.

Reports that will be heard at the convention on conditions of the country, church, education, and what the race is doing to better its moral aspect on prohibition. Needs of the race will also be brought up, including the necessary funds of $400,000 for Wilberforce university, to better fit the school to send forth trained preachers, teachers, missionaries and other representatives of the race. Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars of this fund has been raised, it was stated.

In his remarks Bishop Jones referred to the faithful work which is being done in the states of Georgia, Florida, South Carolina and Texas, which, he said, demonstrates the willingness of the negro to help himself. In addition to Bishop Jones many leaders of the race were slated to speak at the conference.

BANDIT UPRAIDS VICTIM FOR LACK OF MORE MONEY

C. J. McCoy, a grocer of 746 Durant place, was held up at the point of a pistol about 9:45 o'clock Monday night and robbed of $10 in cash by an unmasked white bandit, according to police reports.

According to information given to Call Officers L. D. Higgins and M. D. Cartwright, McCoy was just about to close his store for the night when the lone bandit entered and commanded him to hold up his hands. The bandit rifled the cash register and then "cussed" Mr. McCoy for not having more money and said, "you had better have more next time."

The bandit is described as being about 35 years old, five and a half feet tall and weighs about 125 to 130 pounds.

The utility companies which the Georgia Power company is seeking to incorporate include the Mutual Light & Power company, the Southern Power company, the Milledgeville Lighting company, the Athens Light & Power company, the Georgia Utilities and the East Georgia Power company, Commissioner Perry said.

In addition to hearing the petition of the power company the commission has also scheduled a hearing for local protestants against the proposed plan to institute one-man street railway car service on South Pryor street.

The petitioners are requesting the retention of both conductors and motormen on all cars on this line. Presently in order to assure present seating accommodations for white passengers, it was stated.

U. S. WILL PRESS MANN ACT CHARGE AGAINST WRIGHT
Minneapolis, Minn., October 25.—(AP)—The government will press the Mann act charges against Frank Lloyd Wright, noted architect, and his companion, Mme. Olga Miloff, to the limit, Lafayette French, United States district attorney said today.

"Promised withdrawal of the adultery charges against the couple does not affect our case," he said. Mr. French filed the federal charges against the couple after their arrest near here Wednesday night.

NEWSPAPER OF 1794 OWNED BY ATLANTAN

Days of Indian wars and conditions of 130 years ago were recounted again Monday when Mrs. Emile Breitenbucher, of 201 Hurst street, N. E., brought a well preserved copy of The Columbia Gazette, published Tuesday, May 13, 1794, in Columbia, S. C., to The Constitution. The newspaper of the colonial period had been preserved from the effects of Mrs. Breitenbucher's father, Franz Melchers, who himself edited the Deutsche Zeitung, of Charleston, S. C., for 50 years prior to his death, 25 years ago. It is now in the possession of Mrs. Anton Breitenbucher, sister of Mrs. Emile Breitenbucher.

who saw the recent publication in The Constitution of an article on the first edition of The Philadelphia Public Ledger, published in 1830, and thought she would go to it one better.

Printed on a single sheet of paper folded over to make four sheets the size of typewriter paper, The Columbia Gazette prints the following line across its front page just under the head: "Printed by Young & Faust, corner of Richardson and Main streets—where essays, advertisements, and all kinds of printing performed."

Under the head of "Foreign Intelligence" is an article from London dated June 7. Two articles of other than local interest appear under the head "Domestic Intelligence." One of these refers to the time when Indians sported over the present site of Atlanta and other parts of Georgia.

It reads: "Augusta, May 3. We have it from good authority, that Mr. James Seagrave arrived at Fort Fidion on the 25th ultimo from the Creek nation, and that he reports he has established peace between the United States and that tribe, but the particulars we have not yet been able to learn."

Baron M. Houtart, Minister of Finance, and M. Emile Francqui, Minister of State and Member of the Cabinet of the Kingdom of Belgium, have written us as follows under date of October 25, 1926:

With reference to the Kingdom of Belgium stabilization loan, 1926, for $100,000,000 U. S. A. or its equivalent in other foreign currencies, we have the honor to furnish the following information:

Arrangements have been made for the issue of the entire Stabilization Loan as follows:

$50,000,000 principal amount in the United States of America.
7,250,000 pounds principal amount in England.
1,250,000 pounds principal amount in Holland.
Fcs. 32,000,000 principal amount in Switzerland.
Kr. 9,000,000 principal amount in Sweden.

PURPOSE OF THE LOAN
The proceeds of the Loan will be paid directly to the National Bank of Belgium, thus reducing by an equivalent amount of francs the debt of the Government to the Bank. These funds received by the National Bank will be devoted by it to immediate stabilization of the currency, in terms of the Royal Decree, dated October 25th, 1926, and Royal Decree dated October 20th, 1926, whereby the National Bank is required, on and after the 25th day of October, 1926, to maintain a minimum reserve in gold and/or foreign currencies of 40 per cent. (at least 30 per cent. being in gold) of its note circulation and other demand liabilities; and Royal Decree dated October 25th, 1926, whereby on and after the aforesaid day the National Bank is required to redeem its notes in terms of gold.

The National Bank is charged with the duty of carrying out the monetary policy, and steps have been taken to provide the Bank with all powers requisite for this purpose and to assure it of the necessary freedom of action.

We may also mention that, in connection with the stabilization program, credits to the National Bank have been arranged by the Central and Reserve Banks of the following countries:

Austria, England, France, Germany, Holland, Hungary, Japan, Sweden, United States of America.

The present Government is a coalition of all the important political parties in Belgium, formed for the purpose of establishing sound financial conditions, and all the decisions regarding stabilization and monetary policy have been taken unanimously.

PRELIMINARY MEASURES
The way has been made clear for stabilization by the adoption of the following important measures:

A—Reduction of Floating Debt. Under the provisions of the Royal Decree of July 31st, 1926, short term debt to the amount of Francs 4,201,436,000 has been converted into Preference Shares of the Belgian National Railway Company, guaranteed by the Government, with the result that such internal floating debt of the Government has been reduced to Francs, 2,153,000,000, inclusive of postal deposit accounts.

The external floating debt of Belgium amounts to the equivalent of $24,148,000. The Government and the National Bank have made full provision in foreign currencies to meet this debt from funds already in hand, exclusive of the proceeds of the Stabilization Loan.

B—Fonds d'Amortissement de la Dette Publique. This is an autonomous public institution created by Law of June 7th, 1926, to undertake all amortization of Government debt. It receives in addition to the sums specifically provided by law annually for amortization:

1. A special contribution for a period of four years of Francs 1,500,000,000 minimum per annum, derived from new taxation voted for the purpose.

2. The Preference Shares of the Belgian National Railway Company having a total nominal value of Francs 10,000,000,000, of which part has been applied to debt conversion as above. The proceeds of the sale of the balance, less 10%, will be devoted to retirement of Government debt.

3. The proceeds of the sale of State property.

C—Belgian National Railway Company. The Societe Nationale des Chemins de Fer Belges, an autonomous organization, was created by law of July 23rd, 1926, to operate and finance the Belgian State Railways. Since the organization of the Company, passenger and freight rates have been raised approximately 37 1/2% to 50%.

RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES FOR 1926
Upon the basis of the actual receipts and expenditures of the State in the first eight months of the current year, we are confident that the Government will be able to meet 1926 current expenditures by means of current income. In this connection, it should be noted that the expenditures include various sinking fund provisions sufficient to permit (after allowing for the issue of Belgian Government 30-year Reparation Bonds to the extent of Francs 512,000,000) of a net reduction of the existing public debt by approximately Francs 600,000,000.

THE 1927 BUDGET
The Government undertakes to present to the House of Representatives budgets for the year 1927, the aggregate expenditures and receipts of which are in balance and the expenditures of which will include sinking fund provisions sufficient to effect a similar net reduction of approximately Francs 1,350,000,000 in the public debt.

GOVERNMENT DEBT
The external debt of Belgium, inclusive of the Stabilization Loan and of inter-governmental debt, amounts to the equivalent of approximately $833,872,000 or $108 per head of the population. The internal debt of the Government, including all guaranteed debt, amounts to Francs 32,645,421,741 or approximately Francs 4,240 per head of the population.

If, in future, the Government shall issue any loan, whether internal or external, having a lien on any specific revenues or assets, the bonds of the Stabilization Loan 1926 shall share ratably in any such lien.

THE ABOVE BONDS ARE OFFERED FOR SUBSCRIPTION, SUBJECT TO THE CONDITIONS STATED BELOW, AT 94% AND ACCRUED INTEREST, TO YIELD 7.50% TO MATURITY.

Subscription books will be opened at the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co., and Guaranty Company of New York, at 10 o'clock A. M., Tuesday, October 26, 1926, and will be closed in their discretion. The right is reserved to reject any and all applications, and also, in any case, to award a smaller amount than applied for. All subscriptions will be received subject to the issue and delivery to us of the bonds as planned.

The amounts due on allotments will be payable at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., in New York funds to their order, and the date of payment (on or about November 4, 1926) will be stated in the notices of allotment. Interim Certificates will be delivered, pending the preparation and delivery of the definitive Bonds.

theater before capacity and highly appreciative audiences.

In a laudable endeavor to prove himself a hero in the eyes of the one and only girl, the redoubtable MacLean plays the misadventures of a "cat" hunting expedition. When he discovers that the "cats" are not the familiar and harmless household pets but wild, man-eating lions, it is too late to withdraw.

The lion hunt is merely the climax of a long series of mirth-provoking adventures which begin in New York when MacLean falls in love with a charming blonde.

"Hold That Lion" is accompanied by the usual list of supplementary attractions. Mack Sennett, master of comedy, presents a thriller called "Gosh Darn Mortgage." Pathe News is shown and Frank Turner directs the musical program.

Howard Theater.

Perhaps the only thing necessary to insure your presence at the Howard theater this week is to state that Adolphe Menjou in his most "Menjounest" role is starring in "The Ace of Cads." If that isn't sufficient recommendation, then you won't like the picture at all.

Menjou, as the title might indicate to the clever boys, is featured as a "cad," but in the final reel he turns out not to be a cad at all, thereby dulling the effect of the whole picture. Despite the sweet ending, it is a fairly commendable picture. Adolphe Menjou, as is customary, performs eminently pleasing performance. Don't blame him, cuss the casting director.

The story is that of a young army officer who is betrayed by his closest friend. The betrayal causes the young officer to be drummed out of the service, and he thereby loses his fiancée. The friend marries the girl. Given this much, you would naturally presume that the man who did the dirty work was our friend Adolphe. But alas, such is not the case. Mr. Menjou holds up admirably well, however, in the role assigned him.

Alice Joyce is featured opposite Menjou and she gives the same type of performance as the Norman Trevor, as Sir Guy de Gramercy, approaches more nearly the role of the antagonist. Susanne Fleming, as the holocaustic Alice, is decorative by pleasing, no more.

On the stage this week is "Seashore Frolics." Painted oceans dash and break upon a painted shore, but unless you are past the age of 96, you'd never notice the scenery at all—that

Al Newman and Dorothy Slane, with their able supporters, topping the bill at Loew's Grand this week in "A Modern Revue," afford a variety of entertainment that would be pleasing even if it lacked the talent that was shown by the gallant seven.

Two dancing and singing by the two representatives of the fair sex and novelty dancing by the five males is woven into a neat act, and deserving of the headline attraction. Nevertheless, the lovers were nearly carried off by McGrath and Jack Deeds, who have won Atlanta audiences before as personalities that stay with the theatergoer. While they bring a new program with them, it was hard to recognize, and certainly

The Metropolitan.

Atlanta lovers of worth-while moving pictures would do well this week to make a special point to go to the Metropolitan, where Jeffery Farnol's masterpiece of old England, in the days of the regency—"The Amateur Gentleman"—is offered with Richard Barthelmess in the role of Barnabas Raby. The film version is the same quaint and appealing "Amateur Gentleman" one finds between the covers of Mr. Farnol's best-known work.

Barthelmess is most excellent in playing the young son of an English innkeeper who yearns to enter the world of fashion. He fights like a true son of an ex-emption, rides like a centaur and makes love like—well, like you've never seen Barthelmess make love before.

Dorothy Dunbar is a lady, Cleone Meredith, of blonde loveliness, who wins her way into the hearts of those who see her as does her counterpart in Mr. Farnol's beloved story, Nigel Barrie scowls and plots in the role of Sir Mortimer Canby, a story unfolds John Barry, Natty Bell, Ronald Barrymore and the duchess play their parts just as they do in the book.

The settings are beautiful, making up in point of picturesqueness what they may lack in elaborateness. Altogether, it's a movie version of a popular story that is not calculated to whiten the hair of its author, and if you see "The Amateur Gentleman," you'll come home feeling better for having seen something clean and wholesome.

Enrico Leide offers as an overture well-known passages from "Cavalcade" and "The Sign of the Cross," and new and new pictures add variety to a program that is excellent in every feature.

not necessary. They shine out from behind their new songs and dialogue and keep the audience in a jocular tumult from their entrance until the final bow.

The Weiss Trio, opening the vaudeville bill, include two clever acrobats and an amusing clown. If their tricks are not risky, at least the audience thinks so. There were no volunteers from the spectators to try their hand at the stunts, which were both new and interesting.

Eddie Furman and Olive Evans, a mixed duo, introduce some clever songs and medleys, while they turn a string of classics into a catchy skit. Eddie is fairly capable at the piano, too, accompanying himself in solos and his partner in duets for a pleasant few moments.

Gordon and Rica sounds like a duo, but is a one-sided affair, though that side is an exceedingly versatile one. Whichever one of the two it is that rides the menagerie of mechanical toys, he is well deserving of the hand he gets. That the rest of the "gang" butt in on his number but rarely to its detriment. On the contrary, the actors' reunion, if that is what the reappearance of earlier performers can be called, makes an agreeable finale to an all-in-all good bill.

Tom Mix in "My Own Pal," the screen's contribution to the evening, is typical, which means darn good.
